STORY OF 'TORNADO JIM'

ONE OF THE VETERAN PASSENGER CONDUCTORS ON THE MISSOURI PACIFIC.

HOW HE SAVED GIRL ON HIS TRAIN

Edward Minturn Writes Graphically of the Incident in a Recent Number of the Chicago Weekly Ledger.

James K. Merrifield, one of the veteran and most popular passenger conductors on the Missouri Pacific railway is written of as follows by Edward Minturn in a recent issue of the Chicago Ledger:

His real name was James K. Merrifield, and he hailed from the coziest little Eden in the state of New York—Hyde Park. He had no need to go railroading, but he took a fancy to the life, just as the writer once took a fancy for the sea, which he followed for many a happy year.

He got the name of Tornado Jim from no violence of temperament, for a more quiet, gentlemanly man never took up tickets in a car, albeit he had plenty of true courage when it came in need. His train on the Lexington branch of the Missouri Pacific railway was completely blown from the track and wrecked in a fearful tornado a number of years ago, and since then to his railroad friends he has always been known as Tornado Jim.

I have a story to tell about him. It was when he was young in conductor life, but it proved his judgment, his grit, and the innate nobility of his heart. His train, eastward bound, stopped at a small way-station for water—a station where very seldom, and only when flagged, did they look for passengers.

Just before the train started out, a carriage, driven in a furious rate, reached the station, and two men, rough, hard-looking cases, and a beautiful young girl, not over fifteen years of age, alighted.

Supported between the two men, as if she was an invalid, though she appeared to walk well enough, the girl was hurried on the train, and one of the men asked Tornado Jim, the conductor, if he had a parlor car, with a stateroom, on the train.

"No, sir; only ordinary passenger coaches," was Jim's reply.

He did not like the looks or tone of the man.

The latter muttered something to his companion, and breathed a hoarse whisper to the girl, as they hurried to almost the only vacant seat in the car.

Jim heard a part of that whisper. It was this: "Speak, breathe a whisper, and I'll end your life right here!"

The girl was deathly pale, her large, blue eyes wide open with a fearfully sad gaze—evidently under the influence of terror.

Jim took up the tickets. These men had none, but they paid for the three to St. Louis, the one who had first spoken acting as paymaster.

Jim looked at the girl closely, and tried to catch her eye, but she was evidently afraid to look up.

Jim felt sure something was wrong. The men had no look which could proclaim them as relations of the girl. They were coarse, brutal in appearance—she looked refined, and was dressed genteelly.

After taking his tickets, Jim went forward and consulted with Al Price, of Adams Express, who was taking

THE MODERN AMERICANIZED EUROPEAN METHODS

WE, AS SPECIALISTS, RECOGNIZE NO SUPERIOR IN THE TREATMENT OF CHRONIC, NERVOUS AND SPECIAL DISEASES OF MEN AND WOMEN. WE HAVE SEARCHED THE WORLD OVER IN ACQUIRING SPECIAL KNOWLEDGE FOR THE CAUSE AND CURE OF DEEP-SEATED CHRONIC AND COMPLICATED CONDITIONS THAT AFFECT THE HUMAN SYSTEM. OUR NEW AND PERFECTED COURSE OF SYSTEMATIC MEDICATION, THE MODERN AMERICANIZED EUROPEAN METHOD OF TREATMENT IS WORKING WONDERS IN A LARGE NUMBER OF CASES HERETOFORE CLASSED AS INCURABLE.

By these wonderful methods the sick can now be given the benefit of a class of treatment and a quality of skill that they have never had before without going to Europe. We have brought to this city the Great Medical Discoveries and inventions of the old world in addition to the very latest and best that modern American medical science has to offer for the cure of many chronic, deep-seated and special diseases that so baffle the skill of all those who employ the ordinary methods.

OUR GREAT MEDICAL OFFICES ARE NOW A WONDERLAND OF SCIENCE

COST has not been considered in fitting them up and equipping them with every known modern device and mechanism for studying and conquering disease by our new and advanced methods. Here is constantly being waged the great battle between life and death. Here Modern Medical Science and skill are arrayed against man's arch enemy—disease—by specialists who are devoting their very lives for the betterment of their fellow man regardless of the pecuniary rewards received.

SCIENTIFIC USE OF DRUGS

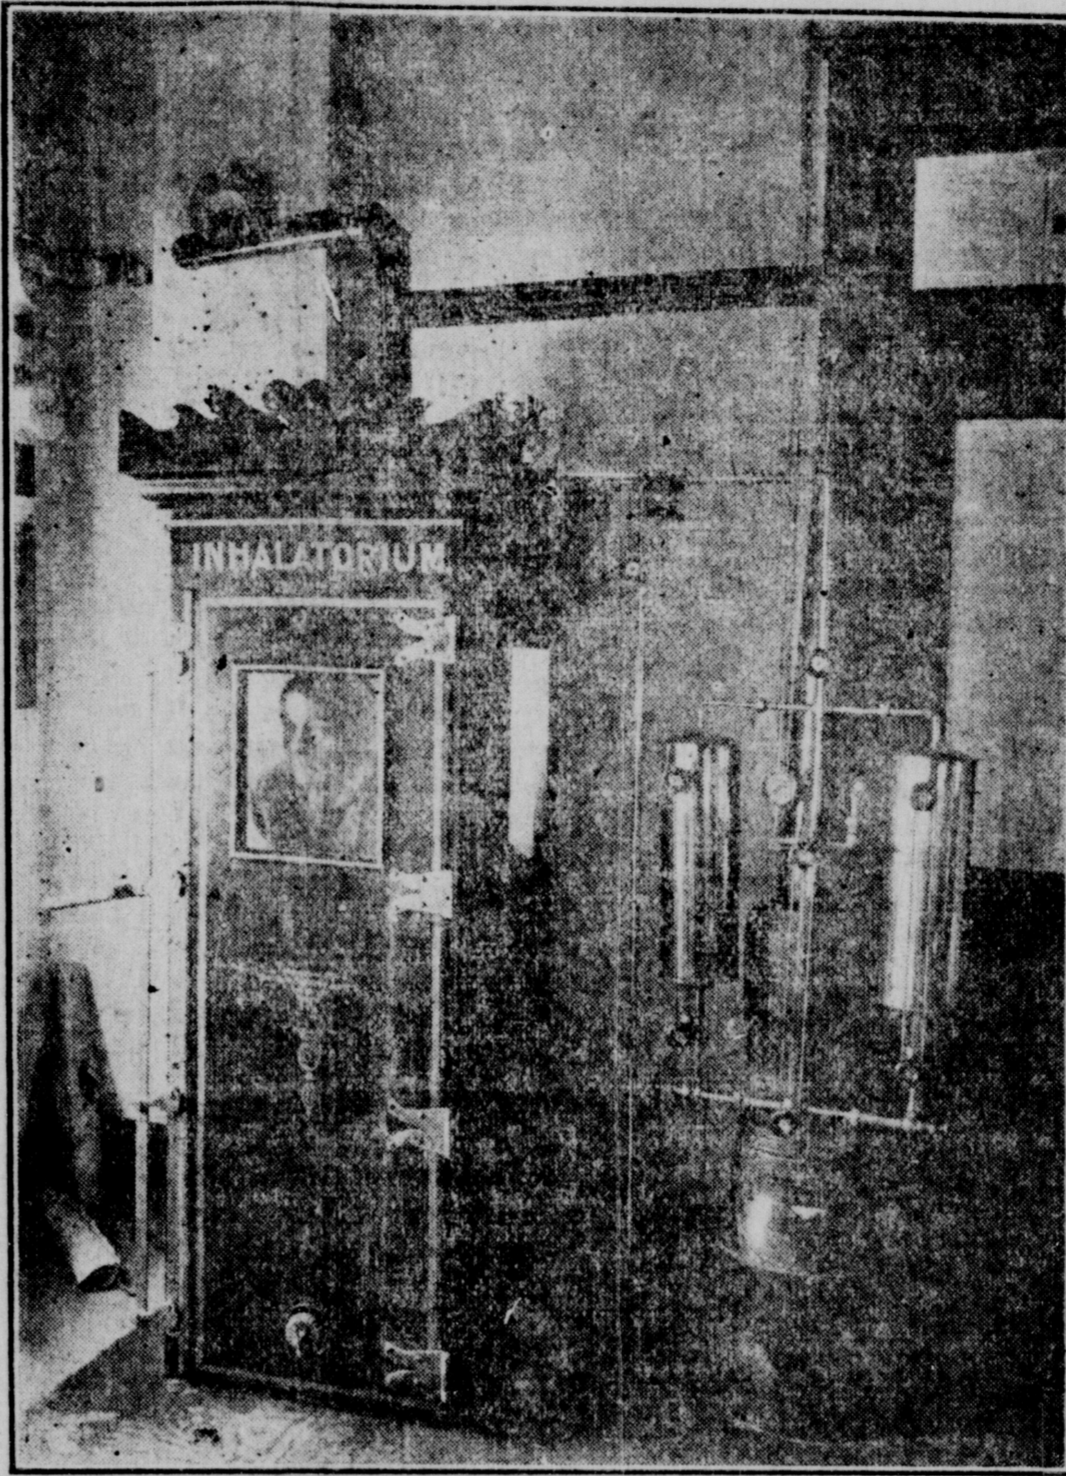

OUR LONG EXPERIENCE AND INVESTIGATION in the science and use of drugs have so broadened our views that we adhere to no creed, sect, dogma or special school of medicine in the use of our remedies, but we select the best of all from the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms and combine them in our own special laboratory and scientifically prescribe them as the susceptibility of each individual case requires. The results are therefore thorough, certain and permanent.

OUR CHARGES ARE REASONABLE.

OUR CONSULTATION FREE.

WE ACCEPT NO INCURABLE CASES.

The Modern Treatment For Lung Diseases

The Wonderful Inhalatorium.

It has been the most scientific treatment ever devised for all diseases of the respiratory passages. It is the most energetic method known for speedily eradicating the germs of diseases from the system. 'Tis a great blood regulator and a builder of the tissues and as a part of our modern Americanized European methods it is useful in a wide range of disease. We give you relief the very first treatment and do it without loading your stomach with drugs. We cure you by the only natural way. Direct medication applied directly to the diseased surfaces by our wonderful Inhalatorium Cabinet.

Throat and Lung Trouble

Need have no further terrors, for you need not fear the coming of the Great White Plague—consumption—if you consult us in time. You can be cured more cheaply here than a trip to the mountains. Do not think that because you have failed to get relief by the ordinary methods that we can not cure you. We have the only inhalatorium Cabinet in this part of the state, and it has gained a wide reputation. Many come from a distance to avail themselves of this remarkable cure. Come and let us demonstrate the workings of this wonderful machine.

Hundreds who had almost lost hope have been restored to health.

WEAK WOMEN WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT

We pride ourselves on our great achievements in restoring the gentler sex to health, strength and beauty; a clear, rosy complexion denotes perfect health. It is the health of the wife, the mother and daughter that mars or makes the happiness of home life. Many suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, well knowing they need medical attention.

THE CAUSE is readily traceable to some derangement of the female organs, chief of which are a depression of spirits, melancholy, a reluctance to perform cheerfully the daily duties, backache, dragging sensation, unnatural discharges, irregularities, pain in the back, sides, breast, neck or head, nervousness, bloating and sleepless nights, discoloration around the eyes, liver spots, blotches, muddy complexion. One or all of these symptoms are but timely warnings and if unheeded a life of suffering with serious complications is the inevitable result. To all such sufferers we extend a helping hand. Our modern method of examination and manner of procedure is without exposure; our consultation free; our special home treatment for ladies works the most happy results, put up in mailable form for those who can not call.

THE CRITICAL PERIOD OF A WOMAN'S LIFE—The most dangerous and critical period of a woman's existence is during change of life, and if you have been a chronic sufferer beware, cancer of the breast or womb ovarian tumors, polipi ulcerations, etc., stand ready to wreck your hopes of a ripe old age, and to those of you who have already encountered these terrible wreckers of happy homes, we bid you hope, for it is on these malignant and deep-seated diseases that we have concentrated all our energies for years and have so perfected our methods that, we cure absolutely and permanently without operations or the use of the knife, advanced case of cancer, ovarian fibroid and uterine tumors, together with all other complications arising therefrom by our modern Americanized European method of Painless, Bloodless Surgery Treatment for Female Diseases. Our sanitarium connection enables us to accept cases that need constant attention and those who are unable to come to our offices regularly. If you can not call, write for further information.

TO ALL WHO SUFFER

Come to our offices and we will make a thorough, searching and scientific examination of your case Free of Charge, and if we find that your condition will yield to the influence of our advanced methods then we will take your case.

a trip over the road, though not in an official capacity.

"I'm sure those cars are stealing the girl—carrying her to St. Louis for her ruin—and she is too terrified to ask for help," said Jim, explaining what he had seen and heard.

"To find out for sure, and if it is so count me one, and we'll sail in and take care of her!" said Al.

"Have you shooting-irons with you?" I saw the butt of a revolver loom up in the pocket of the one that spoke to me!

"You bet; I never travel without the tools!" said Al. "You go along carefully now, and try and open talk with her, and I'll be close by if you need me!"

Tornado Jim looked at the chambers of his revolver, saw them all right, and walked back through the train. Arriving near the seat where the poor girl was closely squeezed between the two men, all on one seat, he looked at her face, so deathly pale, and with a heart full of pity spoke out:

"Shall I bring you some water, miss? You look sick!"

"Mind your own business! She is deaf and dumb!" cried the most villainous of the two men.

"She was not so deaf but she heard your cowardly threat to slay her if she even breathed a whisper!" said Jim boldly. "I saw her tremble from head to foot when you made it, and I want her to understand that she has friends here who will not see her wronged!"

"Friends! Oh, where? Where? Save me—save me!" screamed the girl.

"Here, shut up, you crazy fool!" cried the other man, and his hand went over her mouth in a second while the other ruffian rose with his hand in his pistol-pocket.

By this time Al Price was on hand, and as Tornado Jim reached over and dealt the farthest ruffian a tap on the temple that made his drop his hands, Al had the nearest ruffian by the throat.

In a second, though they resisted madly, both men were powerless, and the poor girl, assured of powerful protection, told her story.

She was a school teacher near the station where they had come upon the train, and these men had seen her some weeks before, when on some trip into the interior.

That morning, only a short time before the train came along, they stopped before the school house in a carriage, rushed in, and forced her out into the carriage, swearing if she made the least alarm or opened her lips till they gave her leave, they would murder her on the spot. If she kept still, she would find a relative and a fortune when she arrived in St. Louis.

Terror had kept her silent until the hero of this story, satisfied she was in bad hands, came to her rescue.

While the excitement on the car was at its height, a St. Louis detective came in from the smoking car, where he had been watching a gambling game. He instantly recognized the two men as desperadoes and thieves of the most vile character.

Both of whom were wanted by the officers of the law. He had handcuffs in his pocket, and, linked together and to the iron railing of the car seat, they continued their passage.

At the next station Tornado Jim put Al Price and the rescued girl on a western bound train, and that night

PREJUDICE AGAINST GLASSES

Many persons are prejudiced against the wearing of glasses and positively decline to use them, even when they are imperatively needed. They may be sensible persons and display good judgment in other matters, but in this one respect they act most foolishly, and without any reason. A contest with nature is hopeless, and it is the part of wisdom to yield gracefully to the first summons to surrender.

Al had the happiness of restoring the now more than happy girl to her widowed mother, who was in terrible agony, for the news of her daughter's abduction reached her soon after it occurred, and the whole neighborhood was aroused.

These two men were sent on old indictments to prison for a term of years, but for their last intended crime got no punishment but defeat.

But Estelle Gordon almost worships the hero who saved her—Tornado Jim.

COUPLE OF WEDDINGS

Moore-Stanley and the Mount-Harris Nuptials.

Clifton Moore and Miss Ella Stanley, two popular Lamonte young people, were quietly married here Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother, J. W. Stanley, says the Housatonic. Rev. John Teague, of Lamonte, was the officiating minister. The happy couple will reside in Lamonte.

W. S. Mounts, now a resident of the Herndon neighborhood, and Miss May Harris were married Wednesday at the home of the bride's uncle, A. A. Sney, near Hughesville. Rev. John Teague, of Lamonte, was the officiating minister. The bride is a charming young woman, endowed with many excellent qualities. The groom is a sober, industrious young man of sterling worth. Their friends are limited only by the circle of their acquaintances. They will go to housekeeping on a farm near Herndon.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—The Escapade opens, not in the romance preceding the marriage of Ellen Slocum, a Puritan miss, and Lord Carrington, of England, but in their life after settling in England. The scene is placed just following the revolution, in Carrington castle in England. The Carringtons, after a house party, engaged in a family tilt, caused by jealousy.

Chapter II.—Lord Carrington and his wife each made charges of faithlessness against the other in continuation of the quarrel.

Chapter III.—First objecting against playing cards with the guests, Lady Carrington agreed to cut cards with Lord Stratgate, whose attentions to Ellen had become a sore point with Carrington. The loss of $100,000 failed to perturb her, and her husband then out for her I. O. U. and his honor, Carrington winning. The incident closed, except that a liking for each other apparently rose between Lady Carrington and Lord Stratgate.

Chapter IV.—Additional attentions of Lord Carrington to Lady Cecily and Lord Stratgate to Lady Carrington compelled the latter to vow that she would leave the castle.

Chapter V.—Preparing to flee, Lady Carrington and her chum, Deborah, an American girl, met Lord Stratgate at 2 a. m., he agreeing to see them safely away.

Chapter VI.—Ellen fled, Stratgate driving. He attempted to take her to his castle, but she left him stunned in the road when the carriage meets with an accident. She and Deborah then struck out for Portsmouth, where she intended to sail for America.

Chapter VII.—Hearing news of Ellen's flight, Lord Carrington and Seton set out in pursuit.

Chapter VIII.—Seton, locating a fishing village, hid the trail of Ellen and Debbie. He then rented a fast vessel and started in pursuit, Carrington pursuing Stratgate.

Chapter IX.—Stratgate, bleeding from fall, dashed on to Portsmouth, for which Carrington, Ellen and Seton also were headed by different routes.

Chapter X.—Stratgate arrived in Portsmouth in advance of the others, finding that Ellen's ship had sailed before her.

Chapter XI.—Stratgate and Carrington each hired a small yacht to pursue the wrong vessel, upon which each supposed Ellen had sailed.

Chapter XII.—Seton overtook the fugitives near Portsmouth, but his craft ran aground just as capture was imminent.

Chapter XIII.—Ellen won the chase by boarding an American vessel and flogging her pursuers—Stratgate, Seton and Carrington.

Carrington and Stratgate, thrown together by the former wrecking the latter's vessel, engaged in an impromptu duel, neither being hurt.

Chapter XIV.—A war vessel, commanded by an admiral friend of Seton, then started out in pursuit of the women fugitives, Seton confessing love for Debbie.

Chapter XV.—Flagship Britannia overtook the fugitives during the night, Ellen deciding to return to Portsmouth, they boarded their small yacht, unknown to the searchers, and started out anew.

Chapter XVI.—An unsuccessful search of the merchantman is conducted.

Chapter XVII.—Seton gave up the search for the escaping pair, and Stratgate and Carrington prepared for the early morning duel.

Chapter XVIII.—Debbie and Ellen located Portsmouth and safely not in to shore, arriving upon the scene of the duel just before that event took place.

Chapter XIX.—Carrington won a bloody contest at swords from Stratgate, Debbie and Ellen looking on and praying for the latter's husband.

Chapter XX.—Carrington, immediately following the duel, was placed under arrest for refusing to obey the admiral's orders, and Ellen, who had swooned during the duel, awoke to find him gone. Sir Charles Seton found the fugitives, proposed to Debbie and was accepted.

Chapter XXI.—Debbie, Ellen and Sir Charles made a plea to the king to spare Carrington, which he granted, after promising Lady Carrington that he would frighten the lord.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Royal Intervention.
Five bells in the forenoon watch on the Britannia. The great ship in the perfection of readiness, so clean that you could have eaten your dinner off her decks with a clear conscience if you wished; her 700 men in spick and span uniforms, her officers gorgeous in gold lace, royal blue and spotless white; her marines in vivid scarlet; her masts decked with flags from flying-jib to spanker-boom end, her yards manned with row after row of sailors, others mustered around the great guns on the main deck, was ready for a visit from her august master.

Everybody on the ship was full of excitement except the lonely prisoner in the gunroom. A barge was seen pulling from the shore and from a flagstaff forward the royal ensign fluttered out in the fresh morning breeze. In a few moments a little man in a shovel hat and plain civilian's dress stepped out of the boat and clambered briskly up the accommodation ladder—really a flight of stairs which had been rigged over the side. The admiral, the flag-captain, the officers of the ship, hats in hand, with much bowing and saluting met him at the gangway. As the royal foot touched the white deck the royal flag was broken out at the masthead, the boatswain piped, the band struck up "God Save the King" and the great guns of the main deck thundered out the royal salute.

The admiral turned, faced forward, waved his cocked hat and the whole ship rang with enthusiastic cheering. The king nodded like the plain little farmer he was, without any particular ceremony, shook hands with the admiral, waved his arm graciously to the officers and, attended by the admiral, stepped aft and disappeared later in the great cabin under the poop deck.

"Now," said the king, as he sat down in the cabin, "has everything been prepared?"

"Everything is ready, your majesty. The ship is provisioned for her cruise, the officers and men aboard. All ready, sir."

"I performed my part of the undertaking this morning."

The king chuckled. Kephart grinned profoundly, but said nothing.

"You can fetch the prisoner here now."

The admiral turned and called the orderly, gave him a message, and in a few moments my lord Carrington, unarmed, presented himself in the cabin. By the king's direction Kephart stood in front of his majesty, and Carrington did not at first see who was there. He knew certainly from the commotion that the king had come aboard the ship, but that was all.

"Lieutenant Lord Carrington," began Admiral Kephart severely, "the hour of your court-martial has arrived, but before you appear in its presence his gracious majesty has kindly thought fit to see you in person. He is here to receive you, to hear what you have to say for yourself."

Admiral Kephart suddenly stepped aside and disclosed little George sitting back in the huge admiral's chair. Little George had a very heavy frown upon his face and did his best to assume a godlike and menacing mien. Carrington knelt at once. The king looked hard at him.

"Rise, sir," he said in a voice which he strove to make harsh and forbidding. "Pretty doings I hear about you."

Lord Carrington bowed profoundly, but said nothing.

"Have you nothing to say for yourself, sir?" continued the king.

"Your majesty, nothing."

"Hey! What!" cried King George.

"Nothing, sir."

"You make love to another woman, Cecily Carrington; you are ashamed of your wife; you allow her to run away with Stratgate—"

"Your majesty," cried Carrington, stung to action, "give me leave, sir." He bowed. To interrupt the king was a heinous offense. "Have I permission to proceed, sir?"

"Proceed," returned his majesty.

"You have been misinformed in one particular. Nothing you can say of me or to me is unmerited, that I will admit; but Lady Carrington did not run away with Lord Stratgate."

"I understood he drove away with her in your carriage at night, at two o'clock in the morning."

Lord Carrington winced under the apparent insinuation.

"That is true," he replied; "but my lady was entirely innocent. She had with her a young woman a companion. She knows not the world, your majesty."

"And you were ashamed of her for that?"

"I was, your majesty. Now, I glory in the fact."

"Go on, sir."

"And she simply used Stratgate as she would a coachman. When he would have abducted her she tried to shoot him. She did escape from him and, thank God! I was able to place him out of the running before he could pursue her or annoy her again."

"You fought a duel with Lord Stratgate?"

"Yes, your majesty."

"You know my opinion of duelling?"

"You know the law?"

"Yes, your majesty. There was nothing else I could do."

"You're not sorry for it?" asked the king sternly.

Carrington had to tell the truth. Although he felt morally certain that he would bring down upon his head the wrath of the king, which would be the last straw added to his already heavy burdens, he scorned to lie.

"No, I am not sorry, sir. I should do it again."

"You're an honest man, Lord Carrington," said the king, "if a very foolish one."

"It was Lord Stratgate himself who told me that I was, saving your majesty's grace, a damned fool."

"Ahem!" said the king, "it seems that Lord Stratgate can speak the truth on occasion. When said he that?"

"Lying on the ground with my sword through him," answered Carrington, his face flushing at the king's deliberate corroboration of Stratgate's uncompromising opinion.

"Well," said the king, "that's what caused you to disobey orders?"

"That and that only, your majesty, and I am ready to take the punishment for it, whatever it may be."

"And what is it likely to be?"

"Dismissal from the service, perchance, sir," returned Carrington hoarsely.

"And your wife, what of her? Where is she?"

"I would to God I knew. If I could have word that she were safe and well, sir, I could bear anything."

"You have that word."

"What, sir?" exclaimed Carrington.

"You have it."

"Whose word?"

"Mine, your king's. 'Tis as good as that of any gentleman in England, I take it, Lord Carrington," said the king, with a real touch of majesty.

"Your majesty," returned my lord, sinking to his knees again, "'Tis assurance enough for the most distraught mind. I thank your majesty. I bless your majesty. Now, sir, I am ready for the court."

"Good!" said the king.

"But will your majesty add one favor to this assurance. May I not see my wife?"

"Well, Kephart, what do you think about it? Should a prisoner on trial be permitted to see his wife?"

"Not immediately, your majesty," growled Kephart, turning away to hide his face.

"I think it will have to be as your admiral says, Lord Carrington," said the king. "You cannot see her for the present."

My lord was too proud to beg, yet there was something else he could do.

"There is something else. May I ask your majesty?"

"What is it?" said the king kindly.

"Ask what you like."

"Will your majesty—Can a message be carried to her from me?"

"I think there's no harm in that, eh, Kephart?"

"No, your majesty."

"What is the message?"

"Will your majesty tell Lady Carrington how I have misjudged her and how bitterly I have repented my follies, and how proud and happy I am that she is not as Lady Cecily and the others?"

"I think I may say that she will get the message in due time," said the king.

"And if I might further trespass on your majesty's good nature, I will ask to have this letter sent to her."

As he spoke my lord pulled a paper from out his breast pocket.

"What is that?" said the king.

"'Tis a letter I wrote on the eve of my engagement with Lord Stratgate. It may be conceived of as conveying true sentiments of my heart."

"Hark ye, Carrington," said the king, "I will not have Lady Carrington to whom I have taken a great fancy, further vexed by letters or messages."

"Your majesty," answered Carrington, "you may read the letter yourself. 'Tis such a letter as would convey joy to any woman's heart, provided she loved her husband and could forgive him his folly."

"Well, as to what may be the state of Lady Carrington's feelings toward you, that will have to be developed later. Meanwhile—the king hailed from his pocket two papers—"Admiral Kephart, here is an order which will obviate the necessity of a court-martial. As commander-in-chief of the fleet I interpose. I am informed that the frigate Bellona is ready for three years' tour of duty in the East Indies."

"You're right, sir," answered Kephart.

"Here is an order from the admiral appointing Lord Carrington first lieutenant of that ship."

"Ay, ay, sir," answered Kephart, taking the order and scanning it rapidly.

"Lord Carrington," said the king gravely, "I have estopped the court-martial. Your offense has been a serious one, however, and it cannot go unpunished. Because of it I order you to the Bellona. You will spend three years in the East Indies. Perhaps by that time you will come back a happier and a wiser man."

"A wiser, your majesty, but there can be no happiness for me."

"And why?"

"Because I am parted from Lady Carrington and because I have shown myself unworthy of her."

"Very well," said the king, somewhat indifferently, it seemed, "you will repair aboard the Bellona at once. Her captain has not yet joined. You will assume temporary command and take her to Weymouth, which is the nearest port to your seat, I believe. You will remain there just long enough to get together your sea kit and receive your captain, and then you will proceed to the East Indies, reporting to Admiral Clarkson when you arrive on the station."

"And my wife, your majesty?"

"I have taken care," said the king, gravely, "that she shall be carefully protected and looked after until your return at least."

"And may I not see her before I go?"

"I cannot modify the orders," answered the king. "I have already extended to you unusual clemency. But I give you my word that your wife will be well cared for. She is under my especial protection, remember."

"By Gad, lad!" cried the old admiral, turning about, "get down on your knees and thank the king's majesty for his gracious clemency. You're a lucky dog and don't deserve it."

CHAPTER XXIII.

The King's Jest.

A short time after two boats pulled away from the Britannia. In one of them sat the majesty of England. There was more ruffling of bugles, more rolling of drums, more blaring of trumpets, more thundering of guns, more hurrahing from the men, as the little king, thoroughly delighted with his royal clemency, was rowed back to the shore.

The other boat departed shortly after the king's, without exciting the slightest attention. The officer of the deck escorted Carrington over the side, shook hands with him and the boat pulled away to the Bellona, a handsome 32-gun frigate fresh from the shipyards and ready for her maiden cruise, which lay near by.

"Clasped in His Wife's Arms."

Carrington was received there with some ceremony. His arrival had been expected. Parkman, who had been transferred from the Renown, met him at the gangway and the two shook hands fervently.

"I am ordered to this ship, Jack, as first lieutenant," said Carrington, gloomily, as they turned and walked aft. "Here are my papers. As you will see, I am directed to assume charge, the captain not being aboard, and take the ship around to Weymouth, where he will join us."

"And the court-martial?" asked Parkman.

"The king hath pardoned me."

"And your wife?"

"God only knows," said Carrington, desperately. "All I know is that she is well and under the king's especial protection. We are bound for the East Indies for three years. Three years away from her! God, what a fool I've been. Stratgate was right!"

Carrington turned away, putting strong constraint upon himself in order to compose his features. "Well," he said at last, "are you all ready?"

"Ready to trip," returned Parkman. "Call all hands. I'll read them my orders and then we'll get up anchor."

In a moment the shrill piping of the boatswain and his mates along the deck was followed by the tramping of many feet. The crew, a splendid set of fellows, assembled in the gangways. Carrington read his orders to them, directed the commanding officer's pendant to be hoisted and bade Parkman, who for the present acted as first lieutenant, to get under way.

As the Bellona drew abreast the liner a brawny figure suddenly appeared on the edge of the high poop of the Britannia. Recognizing the admiral, Carrington, who had stood aft on the quarterdeck of his frigate, bared his head and saluted. The admiral returned the compliment with his own chapeau, then he turned and waved it forward. Instantly the rails of the Britannia swarmed with men, and from their throats at another signal from the admiral came such a burst of cheering as warmed the very cockles of the melancholy Carrington's heart. And with this cheerful sea compliment and these words of good will the frigate shot ahead and presently clapping on more canvas bore swiftly down the river.

Carrington stared long and despondently back toward the shores, fast dropping behind him, on which somewhere his wife's foot rested. What was she doing? Where was she living? What was she thinking of him? He knew nothing save that in some manner she was under the especial protection of the king; that was assurance enough that she was well cared for, for no man questioned the honesty, sincerity or kindness of George the Third. It would be three years before he would see her again. The thought was maddening to him. He did not even know where to write to her. He was not at all sure that the king would cause his letter to be delivered to her. He came to a desperate resolution. He would write her another letter and send it from Weymouth by special messenger to the king and beg him to see that it was delivered.

It was not until late in the afternoon, when the Bellona was fairly in the channel beating down toward her destination, that Carrington went below. As there was no captain yet on the ship the quarters of that functionary by right belonged to him. He entered them without ceremony. The cabin on the new ship looked bright and cheery. Its equipments were rude, of course, as were those of all ships in those days, but they were better than those in ordinary vessels, the Bellona being the newest and most advanced product of the shipyards.

To a sailor of that day it was both a spacious and delightful sea home. To Carrington it was only a prison. He did not attempt to enter the state-rooms on either side, but sat down at the table, buried his face in his hands and groaned aloud. It was the first moment of privacy that he had enjoyed. It was the first opportunity afforded him to give way to his feelings, and he indulged himself at will. Separated from his wife, and through his own folly! The future that had opened so fairly before him utterly wrecked! Three long weary years at the least, and possibly four, to intervene before he could see her again. He almost envied Stratgate—fighting desperately for life at Blythedale Hall and likely to be an invalid for the rest of his days—because he would be in England while Carrington was far away.

He had gone through so much. He had drunk so deeply the bitter cup of repentance that he gave way completely to his emotions.

"This will never do," he said at last. "My punishment seems greater than I can bear, and yet I must bear it; I must show myself a man for her."

A little hand fell softly upon his shoulder with touch as light as that of thistledown. Where that hand touched him was the center of his being. My lord turned his head, looked at it slowly, turned his body, followed it up, saw a face he dreamed of, tears rolling from eyes that looked love at him, and in another moment he was clasped in his wife's arms.

This was the punishment meted out to him by little George. He was to go to the Indies, but not alone. When there was time for coherent speech Ellen handed her husband another paper appointing him captain of the Bellona, subject only to the orders of his wife.

"God bless him!" cries my lord, folding his wife again to his heart.

"And I say so, too," answers Ellen, "although we fought against him so long, he hath a kindly heart."

"He hath, indeed," returned Carrington, after a time. "He gave me his royal word that you should be well looked after for the next three years, and the keeping of the king's word is intrusted to me. I shall see to it."

"Nay," said Ellen, "you are under my command now. Look at your orders."

"'Tis even so, my little captain," laughed my lord, sweeping her to his heart again. "And what orders do you propose to issue to me?"

"I should like to present to you two of my friends."

"Your friends are my friends, my dear," returned Carrington, "and when occasion serves I shall be happy to greet them."

"It serves now," said Ellen, drawing herself away from him. And indeed she found it difficult for he would by no means let her go, following her aft and still keeping his hand about her waist as she opened the door of one of the cabins.

Out thence, for all the world like a Jack-in-the-box, popped Mistress Deborah, her cheeks redder than the scarlet ribbons she affected, and stalking behind her came Sir Charles Seton in great dignity.

"I did you an injustice, Charles!" cried my lord Carrington. "I humbly beg your pardon. I have not heard the story"—and Seton was glad my lord's remarks were so spontaneous—"but I know that you were true."

"It's granted, Edward," said Seton heartily. "I could have sworn you were true, knowing how you felt over the loss of your wife, for to-day I can put myself in your place in one particular."

"And how's that?"

"In this way," returned Seton. "Permit me"—he seized the blushing Deborah as he spoke—"Salute Lady Seton, Carrington."

"What! Is it so?"

"We were married this morning, the king himself being one of the witnesses."

"And do you go with us to India?"

"Nay," answered Seton, "only to Weymouth."

OLD SORES

KEPT OPEN BY BAD BLOOD

Whenever a sore refuses to heal, it is because of bad blood. If the place existed simply because the flesh was diseased at that particular spot, it would be an easy matter to apply some remedy directly to the ulcer that would kill the germ; or the diseased flesh might be removed by a surgical operation and a cure effected. But the very fact that old sores resist every form of local or external treatment, and even return after being cut away, shows that back of them is a morbid cause which must be removed before a cure can result.

The impurities in the blood which keep old sores open, come from different causes. A long spell of debilitating sickness, which breeds disease germs in the system, is a common source. These morbid impurities get into the circulation, and the blood becomes a polluted, infectious fluid, which, instead of nourishing the fibres and tissues of the flesh, irritates and ulcerates them, and continually discharges its impurities into the open sore, and prevents the place from healing. Another cause for bad blood is the retention in the system of the refuse and waste matters of the body. Those members whose duty it is to carry off the useless accumulations, become dull and sluggish in their action and leave their work imperfectly done, and this fermenting matter is absorbed into the circulation. The weakening or polluting of this vital fluid may also come from the results of some constitutional disease, while persons who are born with an hereditary blood taint are very apt to be afflicted with sores and ulcers.

Local or external applications can not cure an old sore, because they do not reach the blood. Such treatment may reduce the inflammation, lessen the pain and discharge, and tend to keep the place clean, and for this reason should be used, but it can do no real good toward effecting a permanent cure.

S. S. S. cures sores and ulcers by purifying the blood. It removes every impurity and taint from the circulation, and completely does away with the cause. When S. S. S. has cleansed the blood, the sore begins to heal, and it is not a surface cure, but the healing process begins at the bottom; soon the pain and inflammation leave, the discharge ceases, and the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable, made only from roots and herbs, and is an absolutely safe medicine for persons of any age. Under the purifying and tonic effects of S. S. S. the system is built up, and those whose health has been impaired because of the drain and worry of an old sore, will be doubly benefited by its use. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

And at that Carrington was very glad, for though he loved Seton much, he loved his wife more, and he wanted her for the rest of his life all to himself.

Seton divined that, for presently he took Deborah by the hand and led her forth upon the quarterdeck, leaving Carrington and Ellen alone together, each in the haven where they fain would be; husband and wife, one and inseparable now and forever, locked in each other's arms.

WILL RESUME THIS WEEK

Receding Waters Give Kansas City Stockmen Hope.

Kansas City, Mo., June 12.—Dear Friend: Our trade is all aware of the fact that we as a market center have not been in the business this week. While it is true that we handled 10,000 cattle Monday, these cattle were all bought and shipped by our packers and order buyers to other points for slaughter. Every packing house in Kansas City has practically been closed for the slaughter of cattle the entire week. Conditions are growing better very fast and the river should be within its banks early next week. We will be ready for business here on the native side in a limited way Monday morning; we would not advise shipping a great many cattle for that day's market, however.

The quarantine yards will not be open for business before the middle of the week, the damage over there is quite extensive; while on the native side it was very light. We would therefore advise shipping, as we said before, in a limited way for Monday's market, but we think that our market on the native side will be under full headway by Tuesday and Wednesday unless some unforeseen conditions arise.

As to fat steers, we don't think there are enough of them in the country to make any big run and think packers will use what there are. Grass cows and heifers and grass steers, our receipts are going to be quite heavy from the south as soon as the quarantine yards can take care of them. We beg to remain, sincerely yours—Campbell Bros. & Rosson. R. L. Glasscock.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering from Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman. I know woman's sufferings. I have found the cure. I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from woman's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—yes, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or menorrhoea, Green Stomach, Displacement of Uterus, Felling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles, when caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex. I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment free of cost, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, and effectively cures Leucorrhoea, Green Stomach, and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always results from its use. Whenever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell you how this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten day's treatment is yours, also the book. Write today, as you may not see this offer again. Address MRS. M. SUMMERS, Box H. Notre Dame, Ind. U. S. A.

FATHER OF ANARCHISM

WAS JOSIAH WARREN, WHO WAS INVENTOR OF CYLINDER PRINTING PRESS.

EQUITY STORES AND COMMUNITIES

How the Law-Abiding Anarchists of Brentwood, Long Island, Were Overwhelmed With All Kinds of Cranks.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Boston, June 13.—Who the anarchists are has become pretty well known in the past few weeks. Uncle Sam has been busy discovering some of those whose dispositions are most violent. Most Americans have undoubtedly approved his activity against the reds.

Just what anarchism is, though, is

JOSIAH WARREN.

Inventor of the Cylinder Printing Press and Founder of the Cult of Philosophical Anarchism. From a Bas Relief.

still unappreciated by ninety-nine people out of a hundred.

That is to say, philosophical anarchism, although it has existed as a philosophy of life for countless centuries and under its present specific name for a good many years, is not popularly understood. Most people think of it as having some connection with inflammatory oratory and bomb throwing. They don't associate it with such men as Tolstoy, Ibsen, Walt Whitman, William Lloyd Garrison and many others who have not been wild-eyed fanatics, but who have believed so thoroughly in the freedom of the individual that they have stood opposed to what is called "coercive authority." Such men believe that in power there is a quality which leads to its abuse and that the ideal condition is one in which enlightened selfishness and intelligence make each individual a law unto himself.

It is the fashion to speak of anarchism as a foreign and un-American product. Very few people seem to be aware that the founder of the cult of philosophical anarchism was an American, a member of one of the most famous families of Massachusetts, a man of strictly moral and helpful life, and a mechanical genius, among whom we owe, among other inventions, that of the cylinder press, which throws hundreds of newspapers in less time than it took the old fashioned flat press to print ten.

This very able American, Josiah Warren, born in Boston in 1798 and resident during a considerable part of his career in and near Cincinnati, has had very little attention in the books of American history and it is only very recently that a little biography, written by William Ballie, a Boston manufacturer, who is especially interested in the doctrines of philosophical anarchism, has thrown much new light on a most remarkable character of the nineteenth century. One whose theories and observations had a large influence on such English leaders as Robert Dale Owen, John Stuart Mills and Herbert Spencer. Personally, Josiah Warren was, of course, a very different sort of anarchist from the fierce reds of France, the story of whose strained relations with the police has lately been described graphically by Alvin Karpis in his "The Party and the Social Revolution," the best book ever written on the subject of the foreign brands of anarchism, against which President Roosevelt's activities have been directed. Warren, who was a versatile Yankee individualist, of the same stock as the hero of Bunker Hill battle, was a man whom no one would have wanted to deport, even if there had been an anti-anarchist agitation in his day. He simply carried to its logical conclusion the belief of Thomas Jefferson and the anti-federalist leaders of our early history to the effect that that govern-

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherry bark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the lungs. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe obstinate, hacking coughs, bronchitis and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering, hanging coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from the lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is any acid, or tartritis gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach), it is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

ment is best which governs least. His favorite doctrine was that "every one should be free to dispose of his person, his time, his reputation and his property as he pleases, but always at his own cost." He claimed that "man seeks freedom as the magnet seeks the pole or water its level," and society can have no peace until every member is really free."

Mr. Baillie's investigations, recalling very interesting incidents in the history of what was then the far west, shows that although Josiah Warren was not by nature a great organizer, his undertakings were much more successful than the socialistic and communistic ventures which were popular back in the nineteenth century and which without exception failed because they did not take into account the differences which nature had established among individuals.

In Cincinnati, where Mr. Warren got his start in life as a manufacturer of lamps, he opened on May 18, 1827, the first "equity store," designed to illustrate what he called the "cost principal." This was known as the "time store," because of a peculiar and original method adopted to fix and regulate the amount of the merchant's compensation. All goods had a certain price which was fixed by their cost in money, together with a fair loading charge to cover the running expenses of the store and then a charge was also made for as much of the merchant's time as was consumed in making a purchase. Incidents were not unknown of economical persons grabbing for goods from the counter and getting off with only 1 cent's worth of the merchant's time. In payment for the time service the customer ordinarily gave his labor note, something after this form: "Due to Josiah Warren on demand, thirty minutes in carpenter work, John Smith." After Mr. Smith had accumulated notes representing, say, half a day's work, he would be engaged by Mr. Warren to make needed repairs at the store or in his house. Profit in the ordinary sense of the word was eliminated, and yet there was abundant incentive to the merchant to exert himself to increase his business.

The equity store was successful, was imitated elsewhere, and many of the principles laid down by Mr. Warren have been put into practice by the great department stores of today. On account, however, of his personal feeling against land speculation and because the store was on land which he had leased from Nicholas Longworth for ninety-nine years, and which was likely to make him a rich man without his giving an equivalent service to the community, the enterprise was given up.

Later, in the midst of various activities as a manufacturer and inventor, Mr. Warren was concerned in the establishment of several "equity communities," the most famous of which was that at Brentwood, Long Island, where a little group of individualists settled on a desolate tract of land, covered with scrub oak and built a village community which had a very considerable degree of prosperity. The original pioneers were hardy people who believed thoroughly in Mr. Warren's idea of self-help and individual initiative and who in a surprisingly short time provided themselves with homes and some of the comforts of life. Later, as a result of sensational publicity given to the enterprise by the New York papers, the colony found itself almost overwhelmed with cranks, ignorant of the ideas on which the village was founded. True, however, the principle of philosophical anarchism, which gives equal rights to all in natural opportunities, the pioneers refrained from taking any steps toward excluding the new comers, so long as they did not invade the rights of others.

The invaders unquestionably, however, hurt the cause of the individualists. As Mr. Warren himself wrote: "One man began to advocate plurality of wives and published a paper to support his views; another believed clothing to be a superfluity, and not only attempted to practice his Adamic theories in person, but inflicted his views upon his hapless children. A woman of ungainly form displayed herself in public in men's attire, which gave rise to newspaper comment that: 'The women dressed in men's clothes and looked hideous.' Still another young woman had the diet mania so severely that after living on beans without salt until reduced to a skeleton she died within a year."

The burdens which the real settlers at Brentwood had to bear on account of these unbalanced persons were very real, but because they respected the rights of others and accorded liberty to do even the silliest things, knowing that experience and the principle which allows such things to be done at each one's own cost, would work the surest cure, they never interfered.

The financial depression of 1857 bankrupted the paper box manufacturer, which one member had established at Brentwood as a means of providing work for others and of making a living for himself. After that industrial conditions caused most of the pioneers and many of the cranks to leave, although the cooperative tendencies of the little community and the pleasant external features of Brentwood have lasted down to this time, two or three of the original pioneers still surviving.

Mr. Warren himself, although greatly interested in theories of individual initiative and although very practical and competent so far as his work was concerned, had the weakness of his qualities in that he lacked the gift of leadership. This lack, together with the difficulties of co-ordinating the activities of a small community with a big business world run on extremely different principles, is held by Mr. Baillie to account for the circumstance that while his equity villages never failed dismally, as communistic and socialistic attempts have failed, none of them has proved an unqualified success. His invention of the cylinder printing press in the years 1830 to 1832 was his most monumental achievement. Improved methods of stereotyping also received a great deal of his attention about 1840 to 1845, and the processes which he invented are now in use in other classes of stereotype work. He died in Princeton, Mass., in 1874.

The conceptions which now go under the title of "philosophical anarchism" spread from Mr. Warren's few public addresses and scattered writings to England and other countries, where the American idea of accomplishing results through individual effort and voluntary association instead of by governmental fiat appealed strongly to advanced and original thinkers. In a letter written toward the end of his life, Mr. Warren summed up his philosophy of society in the following statement: "Almost with fear and trembling, I ventured years ago to offer one, on condition that I should preserve my freedom to change it whenever 'increasing knowledge' should show its defects; and I gave the 'sovereignty of every individual over his or her person, time, property and responsibilities,' and here I add, reputation." That is the kind of anarchism which first grew up on American soil.

A KATY TRAIN DERAILED

WENT INTO THE DITCH NEAR CLINTON SATURDAY NIGHT.

TWENTY PERSONS WERE INJURED

No One Was Killed and the Road Still Retains Its Record of Never Having Killed a Passenger.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Clinton, Mo., June 13.—Almost a score of persons were injured, some seriously and others less seriously, in the derailment of M. K. & F. passenger train No. 4, northbound, at a point two miles south of this city at 7:30 o'clock last night.

The train was in charge of Conductor J. E. Levisy, with Engineer Alonzo Snow in the cab of engine No. 300.

Approaching the scene of the disaster is a high embankment and trestle, and on the latter the derailment occurred.

The heavy rains during the past few days softened the track, which caused the wreck. The mail and baggage cars toppled over on the south side of the track and fell down a twenty-foot embankment into a pool of water three feet deep.

The Pullman cars and chair cars toppled to the opposite side of the track and fell into a four-foot hole of water. The engine remained on the track, being jarred loose from the train.

News of the wreck was sent to Sedalia shortly after the happening and the wrecking outfit, in charge of Conductor Black, bearing superintendent N. J. Finney, M. K. & T. hospital surgeons and company employees, was rushed to the scene. It will require twenty-four hours' time to clear the track, which was torn up for a distance of ten car lengths.

Mail Clerks Kinkade and Shute were compelled to sit on one side of a car in the open air and suffered from the exposure. Dr. Britts, company surgeon at Clinton, was the first to arrive on the scene, making the trip on a company motor car.

The list of the injured, their residence and the extent of their injuries follow:

J. B. Kinkade, mail clerk, Sedalia, left shoulder injured and injured internally.

D. H. Shute, mail clerk, Sedalia, injured internally.

Elizabeth Waggener, aged 14, Nevada, Mo., cut about face.

Lottie Scott, en route from Muskogee, Okla., to Mattoon, Ill.; internally injured; suffered great pain from exposure in pool of water.

W. V. Ferguson, Huntington, W. Va.; injured about hip and shoulder.

W. M. Brockmeyer, train auditor on No. 4, Parsons, Kan.; seriously injured about hip and back.

Mrs. D. P. Stidworthy, Fort Scott, Kan.; injured about head and internally injured.

H. B. Hays, Chicago; severe bruises about body.

J. W. Henry, engineer, Sedalia, rib broken.

A. M. Keen, Fort Scott, Kan.; injured about head and shoulder.

R. A. Taylor, East St. Louis, Ill.; right shoulder and leg hurt.

W. Alton, train porter, Sedalia, rib broken.

G. W. Hook, Springdale, Ky., head and knee hurt.

Dan Hook, Springdale, Ky., right ankle and both wrists sprained.

Homer J. Clark, Appleton City, bruised about body.

P. F. Havlett, Chicago, representative of the Eastman Kodak company, knee cap broken and face cut.

S. Cornell, Rochester, N. Y., and Milton Wade, New York city, both Eastman Kodak company men, backs sprained.

Edward Sheldon, baggageman, Sedalia, rib broken.

M. W. Armstrong, Ottoville, Ky., internally injured.

IN 16 YEARS 15 HAVE DIED

Russell Camp Will Hold Memorial Services Today.

Russell camp No. 5570, Modern Woodmen of America, will hold annual memorial services of the order this afternoon. Members of the camp and all members of the order in this city will assemble at the lodge hall at 2:30 o'clock, and preceded by the Second Regiment band, will march to Crown Hill cemetery, where Rev. J. J. Setliff will deliver the memorial sermon.

Conveyances will be on hand to carry ladies to the cemetery and a general invitation is extended to all to attend.

During the fifteen years since the camp has been organized fifteen members have died, as follows: Henry Brummer, Charles E. Moffitt, Henry P. Voigt, Paul Winsch, Samuel L. Lipscomb, F. L. Stearns, R. W. Henderson, E. V. Stone, John L. Wilson, David M. Overstreet, Hector McAllister, E. C. Phares, Joseph Hamrick, W. L. Jones, J. M. Williams, F. H. Kruse and Ira Simmons.

PROGRAM FOR FLAG DAY

EXERCISES WILL BE CARRIED OUT AT THE SEDALIA THEATRE.

BEGIN AT 3 O'CLOCK P. M. TODAY

Hon. James A. Reed, Former Mayor of Kansas City, Will Be the Orator of the Occasion—The Public Invited.

Sedalia lodge No. 125, B. P. O. E., will today celebrate the anniversary of the national holiday, known as "Flag Day," commemorating the adoption of the Stars and Stripes by the United States one hundred and thirty-one years ago.

All members of the order will assemble at the Elks' home, Third and Lamine avenue, at 2 o'clock. Preceded by the Sedalia Military band, the procession will be formed, marching on Lamine avenue to Broadway, west on Broadway to Ohio avenue, north on Ohio avenue to Third street, thence east to the Sedalia theater, where promptly at 3 o'clock the program will begin.

Hon. James A. Reed, a member of Kansas City lodge No. 26, B. P. O. E., will be the principal speaker of the day and will be introduced by J. W. Mellor, exalted ruler.

A general invitation is extended to all Sedalians to attend the ceremonies, which are being given for the benefit of everyone.

The program, as prepared by Judge D. E. Kennedy, follows:

1. Music, overture, "Southern Breezes"—Sedalia Military Band.
 2. Invocation—Rev. J. B. Fuller.
 3. Music, Selected—Sedalia Military Band.
 4. Opening address—J. W. Mellor.
 5. Medley overture, "Nearer, My God, to Thee."
 6. Address of welcome—Hon. James A. Reed, of Kansas City.
 7. Medley, National Airs—Sedalia Military Band.
- Benediction.

SEVERAL POLICE CALLS

Officers Were Kept Busy Saturday Night Answering Calls.

At 4:5 o'clock Saturday evening the police were called to one of the East Main street halls, where several negroes were attempting to "whip" a St. Louis negro named Bee Fletcher. Officer Robertson responded and during the night Fletcher, Burnie Emerson, Oscar Densmore and Pete Kyles were rounded up, slated for disturbing the peace.

At 8:30 o'clock a police call was sent in from Main and Ohio avenue, where a drunken man was creating a disturbance, but when Officer Robertson arrived the intoxicated one had disappeared.

At 8:40 o'clock another drunken man, who claimed he had been short-changed, created a disturbance at the Airplane, but on arrival of Officer Robertson he, too, had disappeared.

Mr. Leonard Gold to Marry.

Mr. George Leonard Gold, a Sedalia boy, and son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Gold, will be married to Miss Pauline Dobson, daughter of W. B. Dobson, of St. Louis, at the family residence in the Mound City at high noon on July 6. The wedding will be a quiet event and the couple will reside in St. Louis.

Mr. Gold is one of Sedalia's popular and well liked young men, and every friend will join in extending congratulations to him and the estimable young lady who is soon to take his name for life.

WAS A SECRET WEDDING

MISS SUE JENKINS, OF SEDALIA, MARRIED IN ST. LOUIS SOME TIME AGO.

THE CEREMONY OCCURRED IN MAY

Bride Is Now Visiting Her Parents, and at First Denied, but Later Admitted That She Is Mrs. Buck.

Miss Susan Grace Jenkins, a popular Sedalia girl, generally known among her many friends at Miss Sue Jenkins, was secretly married to Chester W. Buck, an employee of the Wabash railway in the car accounting department at St. Louis, at Clayton, on May 2, last.

Rev. Walter M. Langtry, pastor of a Presbyterian church in St. Louis, performed the ceremony in the presence of no attendants whatever, not even the bride's relatives in this city being apprised of the step taken until after the solemnization of the event.

Over a year ago Miss Jenkins went to St. Louis to accept a position as stenographer in the Wabash offices.

There it was that she met Mr. Buck. Friendship soon ripened into ardent love, and at the request of the bride, Mr. Buck came to Sedalia to visit Miss Jenkins' parents.

On their return to the Mound City the couple decided to marry and arranged the date. A mutual agreement between the two was to keep the news of the affair a secret for six months, neither party breathing a word to anyone, aside from the bride's parents.

In accordance with the plans the couple proceeded to Clayton on the date mentioned and was secretly married. Both returned to their office duties at once, displaying no emotion whatever at the step they had taken.

Friday night, last, Miss Jenkins arrived home to visit her parents. The Democrat-Sentinel learned of the news of the marriage and called at the Jenkins residence last evening.

The bride of a month and one-half was called for and asked for particulars relative to the ceremony. She appeared dumbfounded at such a false report being circulated about her, and vainly endeavored to dispense with a reporter by promising to give him the first news of her marriage when she decided to take such a step.

The mother of the bride was also called for, but she, too, appeared completely ignorant of any such action and asked to be excused, as she could furnish no information that would be for publication.

After being confronted with positive evidence that the ceremony had been performed, Miss Jenkins finally admitted that she had been married and also admitted that her intention was to keep the news of the affair a secret for six months.

The bridal couple will make their home in St. Louis.

Miss Jenkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Jenkins, of 632 East Broadway, and formerly was a student at the Sedalia High school. She is a pretty and accomplished young lady with a sweet disposition that endears her to all acquaintances, and every friend will take pleasure in joining the Democrat-Sentinel in extending hearty congratulations, even at this late date.

NO MIXTURE OF RACES

The New Oklahoma Marriage Statute Is Put Into Effect.

Guthrie, Ok., June 13.—Oklahoma's new law governing marriage went into effect today, compelling preachers who would file matrimonial knots to file their credentials with the proper courts, making it a felony for whites or Indians to intermarry with negroes and making a license good only in the county where issued.

REMEMBERED "J. WEST"

A Present of a Gold Watch From Pensacola, Florida.

Col. J. West Goodwin, who recently organized at Pensacola, Fla., a Citizens' Alliance, comprising a membership of 1,000, to contest against the strike of street car men, the organization of which alliance resulted in the strike being declared off, Saturday received as a token of esteem from the members of the alliance a beautiful solid gold watch, open face, with Swiss movement, handsomely engraved, and to which was attached a neat chain.

The watch bears on the outside of the case the engraving, "J. W. G.," while the following engraving is on the inside of the case: "Presented to Col. J. West Goodwin by the Citizens' Alliance of Pensacola, Fla., May, 1905."

An explanatory letter accompanied the watch, being sent by F. M. Whiting, secretary of the Alliance.

THEY WILL WED JUNE 24

JOHN L. SULLIVAN, COUNTY COLLECTOR, AND MISS MARY C. LENNARTZ.

A DESERVEDLY POPULAR COUPLE

Ceremony Will Be Performed By the Rev. Fr. Neiberg at Sacred Heart Church—Go to St. Louis on Their Bridal Trip.

John L. Sullivan, the popular and efficient collector for Pettis county, and Miss Mary C. Lennartz, better known among her legion of friends as Miss Mayme Lennartz, will be united in marriage at nuptial mass at Sacred Heart church on the morning of Wednesday, June 24.

The ceremony will be performed by the pastor, Rev. Fr. S. Neiberg. E. C. Sullivan, brother of the groom-to-be, will serve as best man, while the bride's sister, Miss Ida, will serve as bridesmaid.

Only relatives and a very few intimate friends will attend, and following the solemnization of the event a wedding dinner will be served to the bridal couple and relatives at the bride's home.

The couple will leave on the noon train for St. Louis to spend their honeymoon, and will then return here to go to housekeeping on East Seventh street.

Mr. Sullivan was born and reared in Sedalia. He is one of the county's best and most conscientious officials, and commands the respect of every acquaintance.

His bride-to-be is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lennartz, and for a number of years ably filled the responsible position of bookkeeper for the St. Louis Clothing company, during which period she acquired by her attentiveness to duty the respect and esteem of her employers and the friendship and admiration of her fellow employees and the patrons of the store.

To the happy couple the Democrat-Sentinel extends its hearty congratulations.

LAD MISSED HIS TRAIN

Was Found Wandering in the M. K. & T. Railway Yards.

Master Henry Grant, an 8-year-old lad from Clinton, en route from that point to Sparta, Ky., bearing a tag giving his name and destination, was found wandering on the M. K. & T. right of way in the vicinity of Fourteenth street by C. S. Simpson, of 208 West Seventeenth street, Saturday morning.

He was taken to the matron's room at the Katy station and left in charge of the matron, and later sent east on No. 2. The lad appeared very bright and although dumb was not deaf.

The child had a ticket to Sparta which bore punch marks indicating that he was on his way to St. Louis on the Katy flyer. The supposition is that when the flyer stopped here Friday night the child alighted for some reason and wandered away and missed his train.

Gave Him Time to Cool Off.

Frank Evans, an upholsterer from the Quarry City, who was refused money on a check at a local bank until he could identify himself, and who threatened to wine up the institution, was given five days in jail by Judge Clark Saturday, the sentence being merely a "stool" to hold the prisoner until his case can be investigated.

HE HAD A ROLL OF BILLS

JUNE HARRIS EXHIBITED THE LAYOUT IN PRESENCE OF LADIES.

A FIRST WARD ELECTION INCIDENT

Asked by a Female Where He Obtained the Money, Mr. Harris Replied That It Had Been Given Him to Vote Dry.

Many unusual incidents, some of them quite comical, occurred in the First ward Thursday when the voters of Sedalia were deciding whether to license the saloons of the city or to put them out of commission.

Among the conspicuous figures in that precinct was June Harris, the Fowler Packing Co. meat salesman, who is commonly known as one of the wittiest and cleverest of Sedalia's young men.

June learned that women were following the leaders of the "wet" element, hoping to catch them buying negro votes, so he casually pulled several crumpled pieces of currency from his pocket, displaying the money very conspicuously in the faces of the women who were making a practice of following the "wet" leaders.

"Where did you get that money?" one of the inquisitive females inquired of June, as she espiad him with the currency in his hand.

June's ready wit was equal to the emergency, and, sizing up the crowd, then looking at the lady, he whispered, very cautiously, that Rev. James Parsons, president of the local Antislavery league, had given him the money to vote the dry ticket.

"Of course you mustn't say anything about it," June cautioned the female, who surmised she had a chance of obtaining the $100 reward offered for detecting the illegal buying of votes, but at June's last remark, she turned up her nose, and after a few sardonic remarks, hustled to another portion of the ward, satisfied and contented that June was a "tough proposition."

Another incident was the voting of Charles Hieronymus, the well known auctioneer, who led the "dry" parade. For some reason or other Charles became mixed in his ideas, and voted for the licensing of saloons, instead of for not licensing.

PROF. J. P. GLASS CHOSEN

Superintendent of Public Schools of Sedalia.

The Sedalia school board met Saturday afternoon and unanimously elected Prof. J. P. Glass, superintendent of the public schools, vice Supt. G. V. Buchanan, resigned, to accept the superintendency of the Joplin public schools.

Miss Lida Barress was elected principal of Broadway school, succeeding Prof. Glass.

James T. Montgomery, Dr. H. B. Cole and Charles Hoffman were appointed a committee to draft resolutions expressing regret at the departure of Prof. Buchanan from Sedalia.

AN ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

Unknown Parties Tried to Enter Bard Drug Store.

Unknown parties attempted to cut a hole in one of the plate glass windows in the front of the W. E. Bard drug store, on Ohio street, Friday night evidently bent on attempting to steal one of the large kodaks on display in the window.

The imprint of the glass cutter on the plate glass showed that the perpetrator attempted to cut an opening large enough to extract a kodak. For some reason they failed. There is no clue.

WOMAN AND PASTOR LOCATED

She Receives Legacy—Minister With Relatives in Missouri.

New York, June 13.—Mrs. E. Bar-tal Hall, Jr., of Glen Cove, L. I., whose strange disappearance from her boarding house here on May 12 has caused her husband so much alarm, is said to be with relatives in Manhattan, and is quoted as saying that at no time since May 12 has she been out of the city.

Yesterday she received a legacy of $2,000 due her from her grandfather's estate.

The Rev. B. Q. Denham, of the Church of the Disciples of Christ, and a friend, who left New York about the time Mrs. Hall was lost sight of, and who, it was thought, might know something of the missing woman's whereabouts, is at Pleasant Hill, Mo., with relatives.

Mr. Hall, worn out by his vain search for his wife, is now out of the city.

Meeting of City Council.

The regular meeting of the city council will be held tomorrow night, but nothing special is expected to be brought up.

PARDONS WERE GRANTED

CALEB POWERS AND JAMES HOWARD BY GOV. WILLSON, OF KENTUCKY.

FORMER WAS TRIED FOUR TIMES

Twice He Was Sentenced to Death for the Murder of William Goebel—Howard Was Serving a Life Sentence.

Frankfort, Ky., June 13.—Governor Willson today announced the pardon of Caleb Powers, former secretary of state, and James Howard.

Powers was tried four times and sentenced to death twice for the murder of Governor William Goebel eight years ago.

Howard was convicted of complicity some years ago. People all over the United States signed petitions to Governor Willson asking that the pardon be granted. It has been said that in the event of a pardon Powers would run for congress on the republican ticket this fall.

NOW LIVES IN OREGON

For Four Years He Was Deputy Sheriff of Pettis County.

Allen H. Conner, a former citizen of Sedalia, and for four years deputy sheriff of Pettis county, but now living at Ashland, Oregon, in a letter ordering the Democrat-Sentinel sent to his address, said: "I take great interest in news from my old home, where I spent my boyhood days and was acquainted with nearly everybody in Sedalia and the county; but I don't see the names of many of my old acquaintances mentioned in your paper."

"I suppose the twenty-five years of my absence from the Queen City of the Prairies has wrought many changes."

"One word about Ashland: We are first in climate, water and fruit, and our scenery beats the world."

CASES WERE DISMISSED

Mr Blain Rightly Decides to Let By-gones Be By-gones.

J. W. Patrick and Joshua Elliott, who during an altercation at Second and Ohio avenue last Wednesday night caused a disturbance of the peace in the above locality, resulting in both participants being arrested by the police, were arraigned for trial in police court Saturday, the former charged with carrying concealed weapons and the latter with disturbing the peace.

City Attorney Blain refused to file information against either of the men, and at the request of the city attorney Judge Gresham dismissed both cases.

Peace Disturbers Jailed.

William Powers and William Hoy, peace disturbers, were sentenced to ten days each in jail by Judge Rickman yesterday.

Clarence Garber and Edward Leamon, peace disturbers, were given ten days in jail by Judge Leaming yesterday.

Entertained Friday Night.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hanes entertained a company of young friends at their home Friday evening, complimentary to their daughter, Marie, who celebrated her seventh birthday anniversary. Games and music whiled away the time, and refreshments were served.

MAY FLOOD THE STATION

UNION DEPOT IN KANSAS CITY WILL BE UNDER WATER BY NOON TODAY.

WILL ALSO FLOOD EAST BOTTOMS

In North Topeka the People Were Hurried Out by Boats—Man and Wife Were Drowned Returning From Wedding.

Kansas City, June 13.—United States Weather Forecaster Connor today warned the residents and business men of Armourdale, Kas., the west bottoms in Kansas City, Mo., and other districts near the Kaw and Missouri rivers that a flood of serious proportions would prevail by noon tomorrow.

The Kaw will rise to a height of thirty feet, almost two feet higher than the highest point when the crest was reached on Thursday.

This will take the water into the Union station and flood the east bottoms of Kansas City Mo., which have suffered little thus far from the present flood.

Live stock commission men are moving all their effects from the first floor of the Exchange building, and the railroads are rapidly moving all cars from the threatened district.

The highest point reached by the Kaw here in 1903 was thirty-five feet.

The Situation in Topeka.

Topeka, Kas., June 13.—The flood conditions in Topeka are serious today. North Topeka is under water and the people are being hurried out by boats.

In Topeka proper, the city is surrounded by the overflow. Houses are inundated nearly three blocks along the river course.

In some houses the water is six feet deep. The rise came so sudden the people were unable to remove their household effects.

Many conservative citizens fear the conditions will be worse than in 1903.

Drowned on Their Way Home.

Salina, Kas., June 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kerth, near Palo, were drowned last night while returning from a wedding.

While driving through a ravine, their vehicle was caught by a strong current. The bodies were found several hours later.

Near 1903 High Water Mark.

Emporia, Kas., June 13.—The Cottonwood river, a tributary of the Neosho river, lacks but seven feet of the 1903 high water mark, and is rising at the rate of a foot an hour.

READY FOR CARNIVAL

Sacred Heart Ladies Have Everything Prepared.

Sacred Heart hall is beautifully decorated in preparation for the carnival which begins on Tuesday evening.

The following ladies are in charge: Executive committee—Mesdames Ernest Holtzen, Anna Schultz and Frank DeBold.

Kilpping booth—Mesdames Chas. McEniry, J. F. Welsh and Rose Keowre.

Fancy Apron booth—Mesdames Joseph Lennartz, George Altemiller and J. M. McCabe.

Gandy booth—Mesdames M. O. Allgaier, M. T. Slane and L. H. Archias, Loan and Art exhibit—Mesdames Hattie Adams, Hannah Lovitt and M. W. Cadiz.

Lemonade well—Mesdames E. B. Burrows, T. P. Madden and J. H. Vitt.

Light refreshments will be served under the supervision of Mesdames Herman Loos, Patrick Finch and Thomas Rowe.

On Friday evening a delightful little farce called "A Grain of Sae," followed by a short drama entitled "A Cup of Coffee," will be given. On Wednesday evening Dr. George McNeil will entertain the guests with an illustrated lecture on European travels.

On Thursday evening the gypsy festival, in charge of Mesdames J. B. Mockbee, Harry C. Reeder and Miss Etta Hurley, will be given. This festival will have a beautiful stage setting, a score or more of voices, marches, tamborine drills and other characteristic features pertaining to a gypsy camp.

Kroencke's orchestra will furnish music for the occasion.

CIVILIZATION THE PRICE RUSSIA MUSY PAY.

The visit of King Edward to Russia was an event of unusual interest in European politics. It is the first time an English speaking sovereign ever sailed within the jurisdiction of that empire. Throughout the centuries of royal fraternizing Great Britain has coldly held aloof from the society of a Muscovite. Not even the marriage of Russia's ruling dynasty into the governing house of England served to break the prejudice of Anglo-Saxonism. And Britain's aversion to the oily Russ has been the more striking because it has stood out alone in bold relief against the friendliness of other Europeans. True, the czars themselves have not been noted for sociability;
at least, they were not willing to risk their lives in excessive demonstration. But the kings and queens of the continent have exchanged amenities with Nicholas and his predecessors and have intermarried freely.
The Kaiser has hobnobbed with the present czar on several occasions.

Several reasons may be advanced for British hostility to Russia. Most important of these are political, such as the menacing of England's position in India and the far east by Muscovite aggression. Near eastern problems have also served to widen rather than close the breach. Alliances of Russia with the continental powers have also served to accentuate British suspicion and reserve.
But back of all these causes lies probably the racial antipathy that naturally would exist between the most advanced type of civilization and the lowest. England dislikes Russia because of Russian barbarity. Russia would, with serv-light, welcome a thaw of Saxon frig-idity, but the spirit and the morality of the Englishman revolt at the suggestion. King Edward's visit is not, however, to be deplored. It will do Russia good, if not Great Britain, for it reminds her afresh that the price of the good will of civilized peoples is her own civilization.

So far as formal alliance is concerned or even a close political understanding, such a thing is forbidden, even should the king will, by international considerations over which he has no control and by refusal of the British people to countenance such an act.

LIFE INSURANCE.

The annual statement prepared by the Insurance Press of New York shows once more the value in various respects of life insurance. It appears from the compilations made that during 1907 life insurance organizations distributed in the United States and Canada the great sum of $351,115,592 in death claims, matured endowments or other benefits under the policies of the regular premium companies or the certificates of assessment organizations. These figures represent the actual or direct return to the insured or their beneficiaries. This does not represent all that the insurance concerns did, however, for in addition to the payments mentioned, those for dividends, for surrender values and to foreign policy holders and annuities are put down at $123,000,000, making a grand total of $474,115,592 in actual cash during the year.

Nor is this a complete exhibit. A feature which has grown into prominence, especially in times of business stress, is the loaning of money on insurance policies. While this practice is not encouraged, because in effect borrowing on his policy by the insured is lessening to just that extent the protection he desires to give dependents, nevertheless, under exceptional conditions the loaning of money in this manner is regarded as having distinct merit.

Thus it has been possible for a business man to obtain from a company in which he is insured loans at moderate interest rates that have enabled him to tide over a critical period in his affairs and avoid disaster. The extent to which the loans were made at one time, especially when banks were guarding their funds and savings institutions were exacting sixty-day notices of withdrawal, is seen by the fact that some of the big companies were loaning $1,000,000 per day. The fact is mentioned that not one of the companies withheld loans on policies that had loan provisions or in any way defaulted on obligations, while many companies whose policies had no loan stipulations went to the rescue of holders and provided money at the lowest interest with the policies as security. This procedure was the more creditable since conditions were such that loans could have been placed in the money market at highly remunerative rates.

Representatives Fowler, of New York, and Hill, of Connecticut, both of whom are experts on the currency question, after congress adjourned told President Roosevelt they had not changed their views; that the currency law was a political and economic mistake.

Roosevelt has urged many things,
but he has never urged economy.
Extravagance is Rooseveltism. Mr.
Tawney says that the deficit this year will be $65,000,000 and next year will be $150,000,000. It is certain that Roosevelt will leave us a bankrupt treasury.

Wages of the cotton operatives at Fall River, Mass., have been reduced 18 per cent. How much has the cost of living and trust prices declined? Is labor protected as the republican politicians brazenly declare it is?

There is a tax on imported goods to make them high. But there is no tax on imported labor to increase the wages of our workmen. Why, then, do workmen vote for a protective tariff?

The wheat crop this year is six points above the ten year average.
Of course, the republicans have done it. But they didn't produce the panic of 1907, did they?

The nomination of Secretary Taft may be expected any day. The national committee is now doing its best to relieve the suspense at the earliest possible moment.

The government is about to investigate the business of the telegraph companies. Now listen for a heart-rending wail of anguish.

The Tammanyites will go to church on the way to Denver. But why go so far?

After it is all over, "Uncle Joe" ought to come to Sedalia for condolences.

Rebates are bad things, but what about rebaters? Roosevelt and Paul Morton thinks rebates are all right,

Central Business College Items.

From the present indications and the number of pupils we are enrolling to begin the first of September, every department of our school will be full and the enrollment will reach double what it did last year.

Anyone having first-class halls for rent will do well to get in communication with us, as some of our departments are getting so large that it will be necessary to have additional rooms.

We acknowledge very pleasant calls from a number of our former pupils, the past week, who are occupying first-class positions and say that hard times don't effect the salaries of stenographers and bookkeepers educated in Central Business college.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Democrat-Sentinel.

In vain I have been looking in every nook and corner of your interesting paper to see therein no word of gratitude had been expressed toward those faithful women who on the 11th inst. labored so hard for what they thought to be a good cause.

Now, Mr. Editor, while we bow in humble submission to the will of the people, yet the fact that no words of gratitude, no expression of sympathy have been expressed toward them does seem hard.

While passing around on the afternoon of election day we noticed those faithful workers still lingering around the voting places. It was then we were reminded of those who in their tears fondly lingered around the grave of the Son of God.
They thought that He, the object of their hearts' affection, had been placed forever away from the walks of men.

In this, however, they were mistaken, for in His resurrecting power
He came forth to throw around a darkened world a garle of eternal life.

And just so we would say to those who battled so bravely for what they thought to be a good cause, be not discouraged. Local option is not dead; it has lain down in the cradle of its infancy. By and by there will be a mighty awakening, and after Sedalia has experienced its purifying effect it will indeed be in truth be like a city upon a lofty hill. Its enlightening examples will be as pure as the moonlight upon the snow. Then it will be that you will be rewarded for what you have done.—Subscriber.

Received Many Beautiful Gifts.

The Rev. S. S. Martin, D. D., and wife, were the recipients of a number of beautiful gifts on the occasion of the celebration of their silver wedding at the parlors of the First M. E.
church Friday night.

Among the handsomest were a Bard chest of silver from the congregation of the First Methodist church, the presentation of which was made by W. L. Porter, and a beautiful silver coffee urn, which was presented by Supt. G. V. Buchanan from the Nehemgar club, of which both Rev.
and Mrs. Martin are members.

There were any number of other handsome gifts of silver and some handsome hand-painted china as well.

A ROAST FOR MR. CHAPIN

CHARGED THAT UTTERANCES CAUSED SEDALIA TO VOTE "WET."

SO STATED THE REV. U. G. ROBINSON

Says the Prohibitionist's Speeches Aroused Hatred of Voters— Attacks in the Official Organs Bitter.

Here's another instance of going away from home to learn the news. Sedalia voted Thursday in favor of the licensed saloon by a majority of 848, and as there are fewer than 700 negro voters in the city the charge of Rev. U. G. Robinson in the St. Louis Republic of Saturday, that the wet's victory is due wholly to the negro vote, is ridiculous. Here is the Republic article:

"E. W. Chapin, prohibition candidate for governor of Illinois, who aroused the enmity of the negro voters of Sedalia in his thirty-six addresses made there, is mainly responsible for that city going wet at the local option election Thursday," said the Rev. U. G. Robinson, superintendent of the Missouri Antisaloons league, in discussing the defeat at Sedalia, where the saloon interests won by a majority of 848 votes.

"Chapin became too personal in his remarks on the liquor question, and, as a result of his attitude, the negro voters, who held the balance of power, got mad and voted against the dry element. I never did believe that a party prohibitionist could get the omniscient, antiliquor vote."

Mr. Robinson returned yesterday from Sedalia, jubilant over the outcome of the Antisaloons state convention. He said he expects to continue the fight against the Sedalia saloons for another two years.

The Globe-Democrat of Saturday had the following of local interest:

War has been declared between the political prohibitionists of the state and the Missouri Antisaloons league. The relations existing between the two organizations have never been particularly pleasant, but matters have been greatly aggravated and the breach widened by the recent refusal of the management of the Antisaloons league, as it is now constituted, to go in for immediate constitutional prohibition.

U. G. Robinson, who still maintains that he is superintendent of the league, said yesterday that the local option fight at Sedalia was lost largely through the activity of the prohibitionists. He declared that while the local committee had done good work, it made a mistake by calling in prohibition speakers to assist.

A Kansas City publication, organ of state prohibition, in a recent issue said of the Missouri Antisaloons league: "Trying to demoralize prohibitionists seems to be the principal business of that organization." The prohibitionists have no patience with the local option idea, believing it too slow.

The Missouri prohibitionists recently sought to effect an alliance with the Missouri Antisaloons league and to go before the legislature next winter and fight for the submission of a constitutional amendment. Robinson and his friends turned down the proposition and set up the slogan, "Dry in 1910." This brought down upon their heads the wrath of the party prohibitionists, and of a section of the Missouri Antisaloons league, not in accordance with his policies.

Since this occurred the Kansas City organ of immediate prohibition, speaking of local option methods of the Antisaloons league said: "It is our candid opinion that so far as easing the conscience of weak-minded people is concerned, and leading to sleep thoughtless prohibitionists, the devil himself could not devise a more damnable dope than local option."

In the organ of the Missouri Antisaloons league Robinson defends local option and declares that the league is nonpartisan and definitely committed to local option.

Sharpened feminine Barb. Difficult subjects require careful handling, and for this reason a room clerk at a woman's hotel must have special qualifications, says a New York letter. One of the many applicants to approach a clerk of this class was a young, prepossessing woman who, a few days ago, walked to the desk and hesitatingly asked if a room could be had at moderate price. "Would you like a room at a dollar and a half a day?" With a startled look she replied, "I want one at three dollars a week." "We have rooms at that price, but none vacant. You can see that the office is full of guests, and it is not probable that we shall have such a room as you desire until one of our guests dies—or gets married." Sweeping the office with her eyes, the young woman replied, sweetly, "Oh, then, it is hopeless!"

A RUSH FOR ADMISSION TICKETS TO REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

THE LIKE NEVER BEFORE WITNESSED

New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Delegations Reached Chicago Saturday—Who for the Vice Presidency?

Chicago, June 13.—One hundred and twenty-five dollars is the latest offer for a convention seat. Such a rush for admission tickets was never before witnessed at a republican convention, according to the officials.

Delegations are arriving today from several of the most important states. The delegations from New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio arrived today.

The declaration of Gov. Hughes, that under no circumstances would he accept the nomination for the vice presidency, and that his position in regard to the presidency remained the same, have had the effect of focusing particular attention on the New York delegation, especially with reference to its attitude in regard to the vice presidency.

Generally. The man to whom it is necessary to give the benefit of the doubt generally ends by needing more.

A SEDALIA BALL PLAYER

DICK ROHN IS THE BEST LIKED PLAYER IN THE THREE-EYE LEAGUE.

LOOKS AT BRIGHT SIDE OF THINGS

Decatur Herald Says the "Big Fellow" Has Become a Prime Favorite With the "Fans" All Over the Circuit.

"Big Dick" Rohn, of this city, was written of as follows in a recent issue of the Peoria, Ill., Transcript:

There isn't a more conscientious player in the national game today than big Dick Rohn, who hovers around Peoria's first sack. But Dick is more than a player, for he is a gentleman and, also, a man. He always looks to the bright side of things and is fast becoming a great favorite around the Three Eye circuit because of the interest he puts in the game. His mighty wallop have been boosting Peoria steadily of late, and whether in victory or defeat Dick is always encouraging the rest of his team. The following from the Decatur Herald expresses the opinion held of Rohn generally:

"Dick Rohn, the roaring first baseman of the Peoria team, became a prime favorite with the Decatur fans. On the team's first visit to Decatur they did not take kindly to Dick's yawp. They took him for a belligerent, badgering tough. But on this trip an entente cordiale, whatever that may mean, was established, and thereafter Dick was a large part of the show. The grand stand heard only Dick's encouragement to the pitcher.

"Keep charging, keep charging, only two more to get," he would roar. When a batter ducked his head to keep from getting hit by a pitched ball he shouted: "That's right, if you must hit 'em, hit 'em in the head."

"This spiel seemed to be incessant, but somewhere in between he managed to fire a shower of small talk at the bleachers. They talked back, of course, and they were soon on terms of intimacy. Once when a new pitcher was put in somebody asked: 'Is he any good, Dick?'"

"He's a wonderful pitcher, a wonderful pitcher. He's got everything." "At another time when the fans were ragging him he yelled at them: 'Say if you fellows had as much money as I've got there wouldn't any of you play ball.'"

"What do you do with your salary, give it back to Donnelly?"

"Naw, I give it to the Salvation Army."

"Yesterday, after Peoria had stacked up three runs in the eleventh and copped the game, Dick went out to his position in the field for Decatur's turn at bat. He waved his hand comprehensively at the bleachers and shouted in a voice of authority, 'G'wan home. It's all over.' And it was."

CUTS OFF SEVEN MINUTES

Cunard Turbine Lusitania Lowers Another Across Ocean Record.

New York, June 13.—With three new across the Atlantic record safely stowed away, the giant Cunard turbine Lusitania dropped her anchors off Sandy Hook a few minutes before 2 o'clock this morning.

The time of her passage from Daunt's Rock to Sandy Hook lightship was four days, twenty hours and eight minutes, which cuts seven minutes off the record for the fastest trip across the Atlantic by the long course, made by her sister ship, the Mauretania. The Lusitania's best previous record for the course was four days, twenty hours and twenty-two minutes.

The Lusitania also has the record for the longest day's run, having from noon Sunday to noon Monday made 641 knots, beating the Mauretania's best day's run by six knots. The Lusitania maintained an average speed of 24.38 knots an hour against the Mauretania's record of 24.86.

Blow Out the Lamp.

Otto E. Schaar, president of a club of New York waiters said the other day of a parsimonious young man:

"He resembles a chap they tell about in Bucks county. 'This chap lived alone with his father. On the old man's death he would inherit the farm."

"Well, finally the old man took sick. His end drew near. The son sat up with him a night or two, expecting him to pass away. But he lingered on."

"On the fifth or sixth night the son, instead of sitting up, put a lamp, turned very, very low, on a table by

SO DECEPTIVE.

Many Sedalia People Fail to Realize Its Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive. It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it. Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it. Cure every kidney ill from backache to diabetes.

Here's a Sedalia case to prove it: J. M. Logan, 616 West Fifth street, Sedalia, Mo., says: "I have never had lumbago nor kidney trouble since I first used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago. At that time I was suffering quite severely, and when I saw them advertised I immediately procured a box at the W. E. Bara Drug Co. I keep them constantly in the house, but have had no occasion to use them for some time. I can endorse Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as when I first recommended them some years ago."

WHEN RACING DIED HERE

A SICK MAN'S VOTE DEFEATED
THE BOOKMAKERS IN MISSOURI, TOO.

THE LATE SENATOR, L. D. HICKS

The New York Senate Chamber Scene Recalls Dramatic Situation in Upper House at Jefferson
City in 1905.

The passage in New York yesterday of the bill to prohibit race track gambling, by the vote of Senator Foelker, who was carried to the senate from a sick bed, recalls a dramatic incident in the Missouri senate the afternoon of March 10, 1905, says the Kansas City Star.

Governor Folk had asked the passage of a law to make bookmaking at race tracks a felony. Before it could be passed it was necessary to repeal a law by which the state of Missouri was a partner in the profits of bookmaking. The state at that time collected a license from the gamblers and appropriated it to the State Fair association. The repeal bill passed the house and reached the senate. Then a hard fight was made to prevent its passage.

Frank H. Ferris, of Crawford county, led the speaking, with John F. Morton, of Ray county, his leading supporter. There was little to be said in favor of the St. Louis gambling combine, that was most interested in the defeat of the bill, so the speakers spent most of their time abusing certain metropolitan newspapers and their correspondents—favorite tactics of orators who have nothing else to talk about.

The argument began in the morning and lasted practically all day. It developed that the friends of repeal could only count seventeen votes. It takes eighteen votes to pass any measure in the Missouri senate. Among the senators was L. D. Hicks, of Saline county, whose district included Pettis county. He had promised the people of Sedalia, where the state fair is held, to vote against repeal.

Hicks was an old man, in poor health. His wife, about his own age, sat beside him. Senator Ely, of Dunklin, champion of the repeal bill, told of the scores of boys in the penitentiary who got their start in crime at the St. Louis race tracks. He appealed to Hicks by name once or twice.

It was dark when the roll was called. The repeal law received only seventeen votes, Hicks voting against it. The bill was defeated. Ferris promptly moved a reconsideration. He had voted with the prevailing side, but the friends of the bill had a majority of the senators present and the motion to reconsider carried. That placed the bill where it was before the first vote. If it could be defeated again the measure would be dead for that session. The roll was again called. This time when Hicks was reached the old man was on his feet. Tears were streaming down his cheeks and his wife was crying, too.

"Mr. President," Senator Hicks said, "in my first vote I cast my vote for my constituents. I now cast the vote of L. D. Hicks. I vote aye."

That vote killed race track gambling in Missouri. The repeal law was passed and a bill declaring bookmaking a felony passed a few days later. Senator Hicks died the day the law took effect.

FARE CASES POSTPONED

TWO-CENT RATE TO CONTINUE UNTIL NEXT OCTOBER, ANYWAY.

JUDGE SMITH M'PHERSON SO RULES

The State to Have Time to Verify the Reports for the Past Test Period—Final Decree Probably Next Fall.

Kansas City, June 13.—Two-cent fares will continue in Missouri until next fall, at least, Judge Smith McPherson, of the federal court, said this morning that he would hear the application of the railroads for an injunction in October. The railroads asked for a hearing at once, but the state asked for three months to verify the reports submitted by the railroads.

"It has been three years since this litigation began," Judge McPherson said. "It is a matter that greatly interests the public and all these matters of difference should be settled."

"I hope that all these questions may be settled this fall and that the cases may be tried and a final decree entered. Probably I will call in one or two other judges to sit with me in the cases."

Attorney General Hadley was not present at the hearing this morning. The state was represented by John Kennish, Rush Lake, assistant attorney general, and Sanford B. Ladd. Alexander G. Cochran, attorney for the Missouri Pacific, made a general plea for the railroads.

"The railroads are in deep gloom," Mr. Cochran said. They don't see any light. Adverse legislation has stricken our bonds down to the dust." John Kennish charged in his argument that the railroads made a special effort to have an adverse showing for the period in which the two-cent rate was tested.

"We have evidence to show that some of the railroads increased their expenses and reduced the number of trains," Mr. Kennish said. "We have indications of padded payrolls and other subterfuges that would make an adverse showing for the test period."

SOCIETY IN PITTSBURG

SIXTY FAIR DAMES ATTIRED IN TIGHTS, PRESENTED "PI-RATES OF PERZANCE."

"SHOW" WAS CHARITABLE AFFAIR

Only Daughters of Millionaires Participated in the Performance—Mrs. Goffery Played Leading Role to Perfection.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 13.—Pittsburg men who desired to get a line on the form of the society damsels of the Smoky City did not have to wait for the arrival of the new style gowns.

The daughters of Pittsburg millionaires have gone the Parisiennes one better and tonight some of the most prominent girls of the city appeared in a theatrical performance of "The Pirates of Perzance," wearing pink tights and not much else. It was advertised that the chorus would be composed of young women representing an aggregate family wealth of $500,000,000.

Sixty girls, petite and plump, all the daughters of Pittsburgers worth not less than a million each, displayed their charms for the benefit of sweet charity and the Johnnies of the Smoky City. The performance was a benefit for the Industrial Home for Crippled Children.

Mrs. Claude Griffey, a bride of a few weeks and until recently the soprano of the super-fashionable First Presbyterian church, sang the principal role.

Her husband is a Denver man and shortly before his marriage to the beautiful society soprano was divorced from his first wife.

KANSAS WOMAN HIS VICTIM

Jealous Man Kills Landlady, Fellow
Boarder and Himself.

Denver, Colo., June 13.—In a jealous rage, Charles E. Byers last night shot and killed Mrs. Mary E. Boren, landlady of a rooming house, followed this up by murdering Edward Smith and then killed himself. Byers and Smith were lodgers at the rooming house conducted by Mrs. Boren. Smith was a recent arrival, having come at the solicitation of his friend, Byers.

Byers made accusations against Mrs. Boren and Smith and as a result was ordered from the house by the woman. Last night he was granted an interview with Mrs. Boren and the shooting followed.

Mrs. Boren came here two years ago from Howard, Kas. A year ago she was divorced from her husband, J. P. Boren, who still resides with two of their children at Howard.

MME. GOULD'S WEDDING

IT WILL TAKE PLACE IN PARIS, FRANCE, TODAY—WILL BE QUIET AFFAIR.

HAVE SANCTION OF GOULD FAMILY

Bridal Couple Will Reside in Paris—Both Civil and Religious Ceremony Will Be Performed—Not Sell Mansion.

Paris, June 13.—It is reported that the marriage of Mme. Anna Gould, divorced wife of Count Boni de Castellane, to Prince Helie de Sagan, a cousin of the count, will take place tomorrow.

The wedding will probably be quiet, as both the prince and Mme. Gould have declared their anxiety to avoid further notoriety. It is alleged that all opposition of the Gould family to the union has been withdrawn.

The wedding will close one of the most sensational international courtships ever known. The friendship of Mme. Gould and the prince began before the former had secured a legal separation from Count Castellane, and led to a personal encounter between the noble wooer and the discarded husband and became almost an open scandal when Mme. Gould and Prince de Sagan made a pleasure jaunt to Italy, with a New York bank clerk as chaperon.

There will be a civil ceremony and also a religious ceremony the latter to be performed by a Protestant minister. The couple will be married under what is known in France as the "separation of property regime," each party remaining in absolute control of his or her own fortune, which in the event of death will not pass to the survivor, but to the heirs of the deceased.

After the marriage the Prince and Princess de Sagan will reside in France, the idea of selling Mme. Gould's magnificent mansion on the Avenue Malakoff and her country seat, the Chateau Marais, and living abroad having been abandoned.

THE HUMAN SCRAP HEAP

BIG RESPONSIBILITY RESTS ON MAN WHO THROWS THE SWITCH.

A REPORTER VISITS "THE SHANTY"

Men Crippled in the Railroad Service Get From $47.50 to $50 a Month—Interview With One of Their Number.

BY GRAHAM ROMEYN TAYLOR, Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, June 13.—"Regular B. & O. No. 6, the right main," shouted Switch Tender Griffin through the telephone. It was a verification of the order he had received and the little shanty by the side of the track seemed almost to burst with the volume of his tones. Anyone who spends twelve hours of the twenty-four in a railroad switching yard must accustom his voice to a never ending contest with a bedlam of whistles, bells and rushing steam.

Jamming the receiver on its hook and opening the little door, Griffin bent his six-foot frame through the opening. His lantern swung from the stump of his right arm, which had just enough of an elbow to make a hook for it. Successive bars of yellow light at every slant and angle glinted in the darkness as the reflection came from one track or another in the tangle. He picked his way across them and stopped to throw the switch.

Scarcely had he straightened up when out of the night rushed "No. 6." It clattered past the shanty, thundered over the high iron ridge and then like a spent sky rocket, it could be seen slowly bending its stream of light around the curve before the last straight stretch into the white glare of the train shed.

"You see," said Griffin, as he shoved the door shut and gave the stove the only housekeeping attention which the shanty demanded of him, "there's two o' them mains. One's the right main and the other's the wrong main. They're the two tracks across the bridge. The right main goin' toward the depot is the wrong one coming out. But sometimes if the right one is blocked we have to send the trains in or out by the wrong main."

"Suppose," said I, "another train was coming out on its right main at the same time you might be sending B. & O. No. 6 on its wrong main. Wouldn't something happen?"

"Sure. They'd clean it up with ambulances, and you'd hear the kids yellin' extry. That's just the thing we've got to look out for."

His frankness was a relief. It showed one thing certainly, that Griffin was keenly aware of his responsibility. In fact, I felt a sense of assurance in discovering Griffin's motto nailed to the wall beside a Sunday supplement picture. There was an element of dead certainty about its strong language. It read, "Live every day so that you can look any damn man in the face and tell him, 'Go to hell,' a vigorous way, to be sure, of saying, "Be sure you are right," but one, nevertheless, that gave you a comfortable sense of double riveted security, with error not even among the possibilities. "Job important? Well, you can size it up for yourself. The magazines have had a big lot of hot air about the engineer. All their railroad yarns tell about the trainload of passengers whose safety rests with the man in the cab. What in heaven's name would he do, I'd like to know, if we fellows didn't keep the switches right? Guess the lives of the trainloads depend on the man in the shanty, too."

I was not in a mood to dispute the statement as Griffin caught sight of light in the distance, which rapidly swelled to a full moon. "Great Western No. 3," he was hollering through the phone. "All right, Tom, the wrong main for her," and it seemed as if he had scarcely gone outside of the shanty when the full moon, backed up by eighty tons of pounding iron, and clouds of chinking steam, rushed by, trailing half a dozen sleepers that looked like one elongated car.

As I accustomed myself to the surroundings, however, I began to think of the things to find out which I had stumbled down the wet and sticky steps from the viaduct and made my uncertain way across and along the tracks. I had heard that a large proportion of switch tenders were crippled. I wanted to find out how they came to be so, how they got their jobs, what their wages were, and what, if any, efforts were under way to better their conditions. Already I had become impressed with the fact that a switch tender must be "all there" all of the time, even if his "all" did happen to include less than the normal total of limbs and digits.

"Sure, we're the human scrap heap in this business. There's about as many of us maimed as able bodied. Look down that row of white lights to the right of the nearest track. Each one of 'em has a shanty and a switch tender. There's me and Bill Williams—he's my day partner—in this shanty. Both of us lacking a right arm. Dave, in the next shanty, he's got no left hand. Next feller's all sound. But the two after him—neither of them can count more'n six all told on his fingers. Out of twenty in this yard there are seven maimed, and among the 700 or thereabout in the city, I expect there'd be between a third and a half handicapped. Danno how you would find out for sure. "How did we get chopped up? Well, mostly all about the same way. You see, we're all of us trained and experienced railroad men. This is the only kind they can use in this job. No feller that's maimed outside the railroad service could work in. Fact is, most of us were regular switchmen—the boys that ride around on the engine footboards and couple cars. Some day or other it happened to the rest of them just about the way it did to me. I lost that there hand making as good a coupling as ever bumped together. Just put my hand in, and when I went to pull it out the train had it 'stead of me. Done so slick I never knew how it happened.

"Don't you never call us cripples, young fellow. We're down and out so far as the wages go. We may be a human scrap heap—they pay us as if that was the company's thought, anyway. Don't you know they've got to have men posted on railroading for these jobs? If they didn't take us, they'd have to pay the switchmen's regular scale, 37½ cents an hour. But they have us handicapped—all we can do is to take what's coming to us and look wise. We get somewhere between $45 and $60 a month for twelve hours a day, seven days a week. I just had a raise from $47.50 to $50. That was when the switchmen got their last increase. "Fifty dollars is mighty little for a man with a family. But it comes tough for those of us who have been used to twice that sum—and nearly all of us maimed chaps have. There's Jim, he's the president of the union—we're just forming. Jim's getting $55, and a few years ago out west he was yard superintendent drawing $200 a month. Of course, when the accident comes, we usually get a lump sum settlement from the road, but that only makes a nest egg for the time when we'll have to quit altogether."

"How, then, do you get these jobs?" I asked, interested to learn if anything like a bureau for the handicapped was maintained by the industry responsible for the injuries. It proved to exist in the human kindness of an individual.

"Tom, the yard superintendent, kind o' has a look out for us fellers. He knows that if a chap has one arm off that's no reason why he's not likely to keep his head on his shoulders even better than an ordinary chap. So the boys know they stand a good show by just going around to see Tom. In fact Tom told me yesterday if I knew any feller that had been up against it, but who was steady and had experience in the ways of the road, to send him around and he would take care of him.

The telephone bell rang sharply. "E. & O. No. 4 is thirty minutes late," repeated Griffin in verification. "Sure, Tom, I'll look out to send her down the right main."

I left the shanty wondering by what process of divination it was possible to pick the leadlight of "No. 4's" engine from the maze of lights and signals in the distance. As I made my way toward the viaduct and its rickety steps I heard Griffin's voice call after me. "Drop in and see a feller, whenever you chance to be down this way."

THE "DIRECTOIRE" GOWN

FIRST APPEARANCE IN WASHINGTON, D. C., WILL BE MADE TOMORROW.

IT WILL BE WORN AT A WEDDING

The Much-Talked-of Gown, Which Originated in Paris, Will Be Seen for First Time in Capital Social Circles.

Washington, June 13.—The directrice or sheath gown, that daring, naughty garment which is said to cling to the dainty feminine form in a manner to leave nothing to the imagination, will make its first invasion of social Washington on Monday, according to reports that are now being whispered in shocked, averted tones by the social leaders of the national capital.

Mrs. Preston Gibson, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, will be the fair exponent of the charms of the sheath gown, according to reports. The occasion of the display will be the marriage of Miss Erroll Cuthbert and Lieutenant Charles Train, at which Mrs. Gibson will be matron of honor.

It is a strange coincidence that Mrs. Gibson's adoption of the directrice gown follows the rumor that Charles Dana Gibson will dress his future Gibson girl pictures in that garb.

Mrs. Gibson's gown is said by those who have seen it to live faithfully up to the plans and specifications laid down by the Parisian designers of the grapeskin garb.

The slash at one side, which is a pronounced feature of the very unromy dress, is present, it is said, in Mrs. Gibson's gown. If it was, say those who have been allowed to see the dress, she wouldn't be able to walk.

Whooping Cough.

"In February our daughter had the whooping cough. Mr. Lane, of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. We found it as he said, and can recommend it to anyone having children troubled with whooping cough," says Mrs. A. Goss, of Durand, Mich. For sale by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

ON THE WAY TO CHICAGO

MASSACHUSETTS DELEGATES
START FOR REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

SECOND PLACE ON NATIONAL TICKET

Is Expected by Delegates From the Bay State—Nearly All New England States Delegates Are Solid for Taft.

Boston, June 13.—Massachusetts delegates to the republican national convention, as well as parties of delegates from the other New England states, left today for Chicago, confident of securing for the Bay State the second place on the national ticket.

"We are all for Guild for vice president," declared one of the delegates who is in a position to know the sentiment of his fellows and it is likely that a hot fight will be made for the Massachusetts chief executive.

The report that John Hays Hammond would be the choice of the Massachusetts delegation for the vice presidential nomination is authoritatively denied.

It is alleged that when Mr. Hammond made his announcement he had been misinformed as to the state of Governor Guild's health, and was under the erroneous impression that the governor had not sufficiently recovered from his recent serious illness to make the race.

Mr. Hammond and Governor Guild are personal friends, and since the latter is to be a candidate, Hammond is not likely to permit the use of his name.

Interviews with leaders in the various delegations from the New England states indicate that this section of the Union will come solidly to the support of Secretary Taft when the roll is called to choose a candidate for the presidency.

Possibility of a coalition with one of the allies, in return for support for Governor Guild, has been mentioned, but it is not seriously considered.

THAW'S WIFE VISITS HIM

"He's Sane and I Ought to Know," Said Evelyn Afterward.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 13.—The first meeting between Harry K. Thaw and his wife, Evelyn, since his attempt to obtain his release from the Matteawan asylum took place yesterday in the Dutchess county jail. The visit was evidently pre-arranged, for Thaw was waiting to greet his wife when her name was announced. The meeting between them was private.

Mrs. Thaw said she was dissatisfied with the turn matters have taken and said it was not her fault that she was not called as a witness in the habeas corpus case of her husband, Matteawan, she said, is the last place on earth to which Thaw should be sent. Mrs. Thaw says that her husband is sane.

"I have known him seven years," she said, "and ought to know."

Thaw will remain in the Poughkeepsie jail pending an application of his counsel to Justice Dowling of the supreme court for a change of order committing him to the state hospital for the insane at Matteawan. This decision was rendered by Justice Morschauser, of Poughkeepsie, after hearing arguments of counsel in this city yesterday on a motion to transfer the prisoner to any state asylum other than the asylum for insane convicts. The justice said that it might be better for Thaw to be held in some other asylum than the one at Matteawan as it was evident that strained relations existed between the head of the Matteawan institution and Thaw.

Colonel Franklin Bartlett and J. G. Graham, of Newburgh, appeared for Thaw. Colonel Bartlett contended that Thaw could be legally transferred to any other state hospital for the insane, and in the argument for the transfer counsel asserted that Thaw would personally rather be in the Tombs or Poughkeepsie prison than in Matteawan. District Attorney Jerome said that he personally had no objection to the transfer of Thaw to some other hospital if he were convinced that it was for Thaw's good and there was no danger of his escape.

Justice Morschauser said he could not go back of Justice Dowling's order sending Thaw to Matteawan, but in view of the statement that Thaw might not recover there because of the feeling he has toward the head of the institution, he would stay the order recommitting him until such time as Thaw's counsel could ask Justice Dowling for a change of the original order.

PATENT LEATHER SHOES

Something in Regard to Taking Care of Them.

Who has not been heartbroken to have her best new patent leather pumps crack the first time they are worn. If only there were some redress but we have bought the things at our own risk and can only hope for better luck next time.

That is what the average woman thinks is the one course open to her. In fact, if she takes a few precautions on first buying the shoes the danger of cracking is minimized.

Here is the tip one shoemaker gave for the care of ideal and patent leather shoes.

"If men and women before wearing their shoes would rub them over with a little leaf lard or vaseline, put on a soft chamois or piece of flannel and rub to a high polish, we shoemakers would have to endure less reviling because of shoes going bad on the first wearing.

"Care must be taken not to use too much of the grease and above all not to let it stand on the leather unabsorbed, or dust will accumulate in it which will be worse than the cracks.

"Another thing about leather is that they must always be kept in a warm dry place. Many women do not know this and often let their shoes stand around in the room even on bitter cold or rainy nights. Dampness will ruin any patent leather and one should always guard against it.

"Always avoid wearing these leathers for the first time on bitter cold days, as cracking is inevitable.

Got a Cheap Kitten.

"A corruptionist," said Senator Dewey, "once entered a voter's house. In the voter's absence he pleaded his cause to the man's wife. Finally, seeing a wretched kitten on the floor, he said:

"I'll give you $25 for that animal, ma'am."

"She accepted the terms."

"The corruptionist, thrusting the kitten in his overcoat pocket, rose to go. At the door he said:

"I do hope you can persuade your husband to vote for me, ma'am."

"I'll try-to," said the woman,

"though Jim's a hard one to move

On Some Occasions You Could Afford to Pay One Dollar a Word For Want Advertising

WANT ADVERTISING SPACE is about the lowest-priced thing of value you can buy in this city. This phase of the matter probably never occurred to you.

But think it over. Suppose that the rate for want advertising in this newspaper were one dollar a word! A prohibitive rate, you say? Perhaps, for some classes of business.

But if you were compelled to sell real estate, a dollar a word for an ad. would still be a profit-returning rate for you If It Found the Best Market for Your Property. It would be a cheap rate for a Situation Wanted ad if it found twice as good a job for you as you have ever had. It would be a profitable way to secure a tenant for vacant property.

In fact, perhaps half of the want ads. Would Pay the Advertisers At a Dollar a Word—and a great many of them would be paid for at that rate if this newspaper charged that rate.

The purpose of this comparison is not to announce any advance in the want advertising rates—but to bring to your mind the fact that want adv. space, as now sold, is a genuine "bargain."

RUMBLINGS OF THE RAIL

NO SETTLEMENT OF THE STRIKE OF CARMEN AT MISSOURI PACIFIC SHOPS.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

The local lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America deny that they have lost their strike, and are sending broadcast notices reading as follows:

"Notice! Stay away! Strike on! There is a strike on in the car department of the Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain and Southern railroad system, extending on all lines from Pueblo to Memphis, Tenn., on account of the company violating our contract and in trying to force conditions upon us that are detrimental to all concerned.

"This trouble has been investigated by the state board of mediation and arbitration, whose recommendation has been accepted by us, but rejected by the railroad company. Signed: Committee Missouri Pacific Lodge No. 97, Brotherhood Railroad Carmen of America."

The Railway Clerks' Election.
Two Kansas City men were elected at the closing session of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks which was in session in Toledo, O., the past week.

T. J. Riley was elected third vice president, and R. E. Fisher was chosen secretary and treasurer. The officers were elected for two years. New Orleans was selected the place for the next convention.

Robert E. Fisher has held the office of secretary of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks for the past two years. His office is 310 Kansas City Life building.

Katy Pay Day the 15th.
The M. K. & T. shops will not resume operations this week, instructions having been received Saturday by Master Carbuilder Mitchell to keep the plant closed the entire week.

The employees of the company, however, will be given their checks on the 15th inst. for work done during the month of May.

New Rules Put Into Effect.
Some new rules have been formulated by the Rock Island, among which is one which prevents clerks smoking during office hours; and one which prevents giving out information about the company's affairs to anyone except officials or employees of the company.

Missouri Pacific Earnings.
Missouri Pacific railway earnings are reported as follows:

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS
The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it is, in fact, the popular "Unabridged" thoroughly reedited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and more requirements of another generation.

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly reedited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and more requirements of another generation. It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

much surprise as did their arrival only a few weeks ago, when they exchanged a $15 a month Hoboken flat for the luxury of the Fifth avenue hostelry.

When Mrs. Green sent down to the office for her account today she announced she would give up her suite at once. Frederick Sterry, chief of all things at the Plaza, was amazed and somewhat perturbed. He did not wish anybody to go away from a sense of dissatisfaction, so he sought Mrs. Green to ask the reason for her going.

There was no dissatisfaction. Everything had been most satisfactory, but the departing guest said she could not tell why she was leaving—could not give a "good reason." No more could Mr. Sterry learn.

Three dress suit cases and two suit bags were ready in Mrs. Green's suite to be carried down to a cab. This was all the luggage the richest woman in the world and her daughter had. All their belongings at the hotel were in the five pieces. They were stored in the cab, which the two women entered, carefully with holding their future address.

One report at the hotel was that Mrs. Green and her daughter had left because they were going to Europe next week with friends and were to visit for a few days before sailing.

FOR ASSAULTING AN EDITOR

Former New Orleans Police Inspector Given Maximum Sentence.

New Orleans, June 12.—In the first city criminal court today, Edward S. Whitaker, former police inspector, was given the maximum sentence on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Whitaker was recently found guilty of this charge and today Judge Baker fixed the penalty at three months in the parish prison and a fine of $100, two months additional to be served if the fine is not paid.

Resenting attacks made upon him in the editorial columns of a local newspaper, Whitaker, while holding the office of inspector of police, entered a newspaper building several months ago in company of his detectives and fired two shots at the editor, Joseph Leveque. Whitaker resigned shortly after the shooting.

A "NOT GUILTY" VERDICT

IN THE CAPITOL GRAFT CASES AT HARRISBURG, PA., ON SATURDAY.

SUBORDINATES DID COOKED WORK

The Court Held That No Inference of $9,000,000 Conspiracy Could Be Drawn—One of Defendants Went Insane.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 13.—The jury today brought in a verdict of not guilty in the capital conspiracy case.

Judge George Kunkel, in charging the jury yesterday in the case of the five defendants accused of conspiracy to defraud the state in the matter of the metallic furniture contract for the new capitol building, instructed the jury to acquit William L. Mathews, former state treasurer; William P. Snyder, former auditor general, and James M. Shumaker, former superintendent of grounds and buildings.

The jury then retired to determine the guilt or innocence of H. Bird Cassel, congressman, head of the Pennsylvania Construction Co., which furnished the furniture, and Joseph M. Huston, the architect of the capitol, who designed the furnishings of the building.

The court said that the evidence presented did not measure up to the standard necessary to convict Mathews, Snyder and Shumaker. The five defendants, he said, stood charged with conspiracy to defraud the state through a false bill, but the evidence showed that a deputy for Shumaker made the measurements of the articles mentioned, that a deputy for Snyder audited the bill and that a deputy for Mathews paid the bill. The court declared that no inference of conspiracy could be drawn from the fact that Snyder, Mathews and Shumaker accepted the work of deputies.

The trial began May 12, with six defendants. The sixth man is Frank Irvine, formerly a traveling auditor in the office of the auditor general. Irvine's mind gave way during the trial and he was removed to an asylum for treatment. For this reason the court granted a severance in his case. The prosecution charged that the six men had conspired to defraud the state out of $5,000 in a bill for $17,789 for metallic furniture.

In the first of the capital trials, Shumaker, Mathews and Snyder were found guilty of conspiracy with J. H. Sanderson, of Philadelphia, to defraud the state in connection with a wooden furniture contract. They appealed for a new trial and after the jury retired yesterday in the second case, the court, by agreement with counsel, fixed October to hear argument.
